Preventing Foodborne Illness While Protecting Bird, Human Health At Forefront Of Poultry Industry

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Each year, U.S. human disease experts estimate there are about 76 million cases and 5,000 deaths associated with foodborne illness.

A real mystery: the cause of 68 percent of those illnesses is "undetermined." It's difficult to pinpoint what the culprit is, though many believe some types of viruses. Only 32 percent of the illnesses can be attributed to some kind of bacteria in improperly prepared food.

Ways in which scientists are coming to terms with identifying and treating human and animal health threats were reviewed Monday afternoon to about two dozen poultry producers and agri-industry representatives.

Dr. David C. Kradel, PennAg Industries Poultry Council consultant, spoke at the Penn State-sponsored Poultry Management and Health Seminar in Manheim at Kreider's Restaurant.

"Many of those foodborne illnesses could be of virus origin," said Kradel. "Viruses are difficult to isolate, and enteroviruses of human origin could be involved. The Norwalk virus and the virus causing infectious hepatitis may be of foodborne origin."

As a result, nine sites throughout the nation have been chosen to obtain better data on foodborne illness. The program, called Foodnet, will analyze ways to identify causes to allow scientists and the industry to develop control programs.

Though the estimates — based on Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and Centers for Disease Control (CDC) reports over a 10-year period — are considered high by some, actual outbreaks could vary.

The most frequent foodborne illness product recalls are based on finding E. coli O157, listeria, and salmonella in food products. The product recalls mostly are voluntary, noted Kradel, done by company without being ordered to do so by the USDA.

Kradel mentioned the recent regional packer recall of about 120 tons of ground beef when USDA identified E. coli O157 in a sample.

As for poultry, E. coli and listeria aren't as much of a concern as salmonella, including Salmonella Enteritidis (SE) in eggs and campylobacter in broilers.

The FDA estimates there are

Lancaster Farming's Cow Cam on Kreider's Dairy Farm near Manheim is drawing favorable reviews. Internet viewers with ties to agriculture are especially pleased with this effort to bridge the gap between farmers and their urban neighbors. On Wednesday, the cows received wide exposure to the public when Alta Vista, one of the most used Internet search engines, named Lancaster Farming's Cow Cam "Cam of the Day," and continues to feature it under recent winners. If you want to see how the cows are doing, go to www.lancasterfarming.com and click on "Cow Cam."

AUTUMNAL EQUINOX

September 22 at 1:27 P.M Eastern Daylight Time marks the passing of summer into fall this year. It's said that as the wind and weather is at the time of the equinoxes, so will be the wind and weather during the following three months If the autumn is warm, it's reputed that the winter will be long If there's much autumn fog, there will be much winter snow If the autumn is clear, the winter will be windy If the leaves on deciduous trees have not fallen by St. Martin's Day (November 11), expect a cold winter If the storms of September clear off warm, however, you can expect the winter storms to be relatively warm, as well

The autumn night is changeable.

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Never cut lettuce greens—it makes the edges turn brown. Tear them instead.

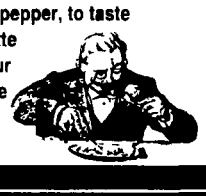
PECAN AND PORK SALAD

1 head Boston or oakleaf lettuce
1/3 cup pecan halves
1 tablespoon butter
1/4 teaspoon paprika
1/4 pound grilled pork tenderloin (or cooked, smoked turkey, steak, or chicken), cut into strips
1/8 teaspoon oregano
salt and pepper, to taste
vinaigrette of your choice



Rinse, dry, and tear lettuce leaves and place them into a salad bowl Sauté pecan halves in butter and paprika for 2 to 3 minutes Set aside pecans and barely heat the pork strips in the same pan Add oregano and salt and pepper When just warm, add this to the salad bowl, then toss with pecans and vinaigrette

Makes 4 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

When corns ache, rain follows.

When beech acorns thrive well and oak trees hang full, a hard winter will follow with much snow.

As many days from the first snow to the next new Moon, so many times will it thaw in winter.

A brisk wind generally precedes rain.

OPINION

The Farmer's Dilemma

Imagine getting a pay cut for doing a good job. But that's what farmers face this year as they produce near-record crops of corn and soybeans.

In many parts of the country, yields are expected to be just short of record levels. This good job of production will likely flood the market and bring the lowest prices since the 1986 level of $1.28 per bushel.

Allan Lines, ag economist from Ohio State University, says this all came about because we have had several good crop years beginning in 1996 and 1997. In 1998 we had near-record yields with another good crop in 1999. Now we add the better-than-excellent crop in 2000 and an explosive situation appears inevitable. We have more corn produced than we can consume.

Of course, government programs will help farmers with income because loan rates are above corn and soybean prices. And low prices encourage the use of crops for industrial purposes and give livestock producers lower input costs.

But this situation again brings to the front the eternal dilemma of agriculture. One farmer's loss is another farmer's gain. We need to find a way to raise prices enough at every farm gate, so all farm families can make a decent living at the occupation they love.

Now Is The Time

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Beware Of Silo Gas

Silo filling is in full swing and with it comes the hidden danger of silo gas, reports Leon Ressler, Lancaster County extension agricultural agent.

Silo gas is formed by the natural fermentation of chopped forages in the silo. Several gases are formed and the type of silo the forage is stored in determines the amount of different gases.

In a conventional or open top silo, nitrogen dioxide is the major gas formed. A strong, bleach-like odor and low-lying yellow, red, or dark brown fumes characterize this gas. It reaches a peak about three days after filling and quickly begins to decrease shortly thereafter, especially if the silo is ventilated. After two weeks, it is unlikely that any gas will be formed but some could be present if trapped and unable to escape the silo.

Nitrogen dioxide is dangerous because it causes severe irritation to the nose and throat and could cause inflammation of the lungs. It is especially dangerous because low-level exposure is often accompanied by only slight irritation and pain. Although death can occur immediately, a farmer could breathe the gas without any immediate serious symptoms and then die in his sleep hours later from fluid collecting in his lungs. Many victims have relapses one to two weeks after the initial exposure with symptoms similar to pneumonia.

If you are exposed to the gas it is critical that you seek medical attention.

To Be Safe Around Silos

Ideally everyone should avoid the silo during the critical period when gases are forming, reminds Leon Ressler, Lancaster County extension agricultural agent.

Since this is not always possible, it is best to use a self-contained breathing apparatus when entering during the danger period. This is the only breathing device that is certain to protect you from silo gases.

Dust masks or even chemical cartridge respirators do not provide sufficient protection and are not intended to be used where gases are extremely toxic or where the air has been replaced by gases like carbon dioxide.

If you do not have access to a self-contained breathing device, it is possible to enter the silo safely if the following precautions are followed.

First, ventilate the silo and adjacent areas by running the blower 20 minutes before entering. All doors should be opened down to the level of the settled silage and the windows to the feed room should be opened. Leave the blower running the entire time you are inside.

Never enter the silo unless another adult is present who can go for help if needed. This person should maintain visual contact with you. Although it will not protect you from silo gases, wear a dust mask or some other respirator to protect your lungs from high concentrations of dust and mold spores, which are found in silos and can affect your lungs.

To Make High Quality Silage

Silage making is hard and dangerous work, reminds Robert Anderson, Lancaster County extension agronomy agent.

Compounding the problem is often machinery breakdown, which further delays the operation. This stresses the need to practice preventative maintenance. By replacing worn parts before they break and following maintenance schedules, you can reduce loss time to breakdowns.

Remember, corn silage has its best quality when harvested at the optimum moisture level, chopped fine enough to pack well, and the storage facility is filled fast to exclude oxygen. Any delay in cutting silage and filling the silo can lower the quality of the feed and increase spoilage.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE PERIL OF POWER

Background Scripture:
Judges 13 through 16.
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 145:14-20.

Some Bible stories are only instructive for us negatively. Like many of the parables of Jesus, they show us how not to, rather than how to. Such a story is the tragic tale of Samson, a man gifted by God, but unwilling to use his gift for the God who gave it to him. The story of Samson, thus, is very relevant for us and our time because it tells us how not to use the gifts God still bestows upon each of us.

The story begins well enough, once you get past the fact that "... the people of Israel again did what was evil in the sight of the Lord; and the Lord gave them into the hand of the Philistines for forty years" (13:1). God causes Manoah's barren wife to conceive a son, providing the couple will raise their son as a Nazirite, a child dedicated to the Lord with special vows. The story tells us that "the boy grew, and the Lord blessed him" (1-3:24) with the stirrings of God's Spirit. Samson soon gained a reputation for legendary physical strength.

Power Over Self

From this point, however, Samson's story takes on an increasingly negative tone. Despite his great physical power, Samson seems to have little power over his own emotions. Seeing a young Philistine woman, he returns home and tells his father and mother: " 'I saw one of the daughters of the Philistines at Timnah; now get her for me as my wife.' But his father and mother said to him, 'Is there not a woman among the daughters of your kinsmen, or among all our people that you must take a wife from the uncircumcised Philistines?" (14:1-3).

It was not right for a man dedicated to God that he should take a pagan wife from among Israel's greatest enemies. But Samson would have this Philistine woman whether or not his parents agreed.

Sound familiar? Some people have said that Samson's trouble was basically with women — three Philistine women, to be precise. His Philistine wife of Timnah betrayed Samson to her people. As a result of her treachery, he killed 30 men at Ashkelon and gave their possessions to the Philistines to whom he lost the bet on the riddle. Later, Samson visited a prostitute at Gaza and, when he was ambushed by Philistines at the city gates, he pulled them down to intimidate his enemies. Finally, he fell in love with Delilah, another Philistine woman, who repeatedly betrayed him.

Capricious Power

It is hard to be sympathetic with Samson over his three Philistine female nemeses for, like his fellow Israelites, he seemed incapable of learning from his experiences. Like Israel, he makes the same mistake over and over again. Like Israel, he betrays his special gifts from the Lord and stubbornly insists on having his own way. Like Israel, he winds up doing what was evil in God's sight, using his God-given power, not for good, but for his own selfish wants.

Like Israel. Like us?

In the Interpreter's Bible, Vol. 2 (Abingdon-Cokesbury Press) Phillips P. Elliot observes that Samson "tore down more than he put up. He is the incarnation of the kind of power which is out of control. . . . How strange that both this ancient giant and the great nations of today should face the same temptations and need the same restraint."

Both as individuals and as members of society we are faced with that temptation — to use our God-given power capriciously, to forget that power is a means, not an end.

Samson started out in life with everything going for him: a child born to barren parents and intended for a life of special service to God. But he used this power selfishly, capriciously, and arrogantly and his end is predictable: humiliated by his enemies, he uses his returning power for revenge against them, pulling down the house on his enemies and himself. It is a tragic end for someone so gifted, just as it is tragic when we use God's gifts so selfishly and irresponsibly.

CHOOSE THE RIGHT WAY

WITH Big Dutchman®

UNIVENT Starter Pullet Cages
Stacked with Manure Belt

Advantages

- simple assembly of 3 to 8 tiers;
- feed troughs are mounted on supports for trough stability and long service life;
- feed trough with inner rim provides minimal feed losses;
- upper walkway for batteries with more than 5 tiers = easy bird control;
- better thermal economy (reduced heating expenses and reduced investment costs per bird) is achieved with systems of 4 or more tiers due to increased density;
- remarkably low bird mortality during rearing.

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

By Ken Bailey
Penn State University

September 8, 2000

Outlook is for Limited Price Relief

- Cheese prices showing some strength
- Class III price will peak at $11
- Class IV price to decline rest of year

The outlook for milk prices has been hampered by growing cow numbers in the west, cheap grain prices, and rising cheese stocks That has kept cheese prices, and hence Class III prices, lower than I had expected for this time of the year Those lower Class III prices have been offset somewhat with higher Class I, II, and IV prices Overall, farm-gate milk prices will only rise about $1 per cwt this fall in most federal orders

The outlook for dairy commodity prices and class prices are in tables 1-2 below. The market expects butter prices will weaken and cheese prices will strengthen over the next few months Demand for cheese has been very good so far this year and cheese volume the last few weeks at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange has been very good

Expect NASS monthly cheese prices to average $1.26 per pound in October and begin to decline thereafter The NASS cheese prices are lower than expected mainly because of the extreme gap that had widened in recent weeks between the block and barrel prices Both the blocks and barrels are used in the NASS calculation for average cheese prices Butter prices have already peaked and will begin to decline throughout the year

Based on forecasts of cheese prices, the Class III price will peak at just over $11 per cwt in October. You will recall that the Class III futures prices were trading at around $12.50 per cwt for September and October about six weeks ago. Some dairy producers I spoke with had locked in those prices using the futures markets. As of September 8, the Chicago Mercantile Exchange futures settlement price for October was $11.10 per cwt. It was $10.75 in December.

Class IV prices are expected to peak at $11 90 in September and then begin to decline thereafter. That is due to the outlook for lower butter prices The Chicago Mercantile Class IV futures prices as of September 8, 2000 had $11.61 per cwt for October and a decline to $11 50 per cwt by December

For the remainder of the year, both the Class I mover and the Class II price will move with the Class IV price Since the Class IV price is expected to decline, so also will the Class II price, which is equal to the Class IV skim milk price plus $0 70 per cwt. The Class I mover is equal to the higher of the Class III or IV skim milk price. Since the Class IV skim milk price will likely be greater than the Class III skim milk price, look for the Class I mover to decline with the Class IV price the rest of the year For dairy producers in Class I markets, the surge in Class I demand due to kids going back to school will help offset some of the dollar decline in the Class I mover.

ON THE FLOOR
With the feeder resting on the floor the feed level tube is raised to present feed in the entire pan without over filling like other typical flood feeders
WINCHED
When the feeder is winched the feed level tube automatically lowers to your pre selected finishing level

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Sept. 13, 2000
Report Supplied By USDA

Fund buying and profit taking on the Boards, today, drove grain and soybean bids lower. Also continued lack of export news added pressure.

Wheat 2 to 4 cents lower. Corn 1 to 8 cents lower. Sorghum 5 cents lower.

Soybeans 6 to 13 cents lower.

Spillover weakness from yesterday's declines on the Board kept grain and soybean bids tumbling lower. Profit taking was noted on the Boards in all pits. Corn bids were also pressured by active harvest progress.

Reports that this year's French wheat crop has higher protein than last years weighed big on wheat bids. Another day with no US export announcements for any commodity, undermined bids.

Chester County 4-H Benefit Auction To Help Construct Exhibits Building

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HONEY BROOK (Chester Co.) — It's benefit auction time.

To help construct a permanent building to house nonlivestock items during Chester County's annual 4-H Fair Week, a 4-H benefit auction is scheduled Saturday, Sept. 23, at the Romano 4-H Center east of Honey Brook.

According to a letter posted to friends of 4-H, the exhibition building in West Brandywine Township "provides a place for 4-H events to take place, including areas for beef, sheep, swine, dairy, and horse shows," wrote Betsy MacCauley, 4-H leader.

But the annual auction will help build finances to construct an area to house nonlivestock items, including many different types of 4-H crafts, during the fair week.

According to Cheryl Fairbairn, county agent, vegetable, flower, and other displays are exhibited in a tent during the week at the center. However, inclement weather often threatens the exhibits.

A permanent structure would do well to house the items and provide a meeting and exhibit area for 4-H members throughout the year.

Nancy Marsh, president of the center advisory committee along with husband Tom Marsh, co-chair of the auction, noted to 4-H club leaders that donations are needed for the auction and people to help conduct the face painting, games, and other activities. "Handmade items from the clubs are always a huge hit and sell well," Nancy wrote in a recent letter.

"Your support is crucial to our efforts in getting a new building," she wrote. "Time is short, so act fast and make this the best auction ever."

A form to indicate items to be donated is included in this issue of Lancaster Farming.

A silent auction begins at 2 p.m. A live auction is scheduled at 6 p.m.

The Phillie Phanatic is scheduled to appear between 3 p.m.-5 p.m.

Auctioneer is Bill MacCauley, Atglen.

Last year about $21,000 was raised at the benefit auction.

Also at the auction will be pony rides, games, good food, and lots of entertainment. For sale will be antiques, quilts, a hand-braided rug, furniture, tools, art work, old bottles, milk crates, collector's items, sports items, flowers, ornamental items, and others.

For more information, contact Tom or Nancy Marsh at (610) 273-3478 or the extension office at (610) 696-3500.

Video To Showcase Innovative Pennsylvania Dairy Services And Products

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders is looking for examples of innovative and creative ways businesses and institutions are providing services to dairy producers in Pennsylvania. Selected examples will be showcased in a video that will be produced this fall.

The goal of the video is show the wide range of non-traditional support services available to Pennsylvania producers, and to encourage producers to look beyond the traditional programs and services when it comes to operating their businesses.

"Pennsylvania dairy producers are in an enviable position because of the creative and innovative sales and service programs made available to them today by an aggressive support industry," said Joel Rotz, president of the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders. "Our goal through this video is create an awareness among producers of the many services that may help them be more competitive and profitable."

Companies and educational institutions are encouraged to contact the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders if they are offering a unique or non-traditional service or product to Pennsylvania producers.

The video oversight committee has identified six categories of products and services: professional consulting; professional services; specialization; marketing and promotion; and education/training.

An example of the kind of services that will be showcased in the video is the professional business planning service now provided by several companies and private consultants. Other examples are the programs and services being developed to help producers as they employ multicultural workers on dairy farms.

Anyone is welcome to suggest ideas for consideration for the video. Information should be sent to the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders at 777 West Harrisburg Pike, Middletown, PA 17057, or contact Alan Bair at 717-948-6328, fax 717-948-6528, or e-mail at nab4@psu.edu.

PFB Concerned Over Possible Importation Of Heifers

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — The Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, the state's largest general farming organization, expressed concern this week about a possible importation of heifers from Uruguay. The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) recently received requests to bring at least three lots of heifers into the state.

"Farm Bureau is interested in protecting the viability of the state's agricultural industry, which means protecting the health of Pennsylvania's livestock is a foremost concern," said PFB President Guy Donaldson.

"The United States and Pennsylvania have expended large amounts of time and money in efforts to eradicate these diseases, so we certainly don't want to take any avoidable health risks."

"PFB urges the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Animal Health and Diagnostic Services to make every effort to ensure that USDA does not approve the importation before all avenues of concern can be favorably resolved," said Donaldson.

"the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau is a staunch supporter of international trade, however, when it is possibly risking our own animals, we need Pennsylvania's Animal Health and Diagnostic Commission to review all possible precautions."

Concern has arisen because of the uncertainty of Uruguay's status with regard to tuberculosis, brucellosis, blue tongue and, despite Uruguay's "free status," foot and mouth disease, due to recent outbreaks in neighboring countries. The animal health risk presented by these uncertainties is amplified by the number of cattle to be imported, and the probability that these animals ultimately would be distributed to many different herds throughout the state.

Soil Test To Determine Alfalfa Fertility

Paul Craig
Dauphin County
Forage Crops Agent

Although haymaking conditions have not been ideal this year because of unpredictable weather forecasts, the total amount of forage production from most alfalfa stands is significant.

Many alfalfa producers will soon be completing fifth cutting with yields approaching seven tons of dry matter per acre on many fields. Fertility programs for established stands of alfalfa should be reviewed at this time of year and topdress additions made before winter dormancy.

Fertility studies have shown that one-ton of alfalfa hay equivalent removes 15 to 20 pounds of phosphorous and 45 to 60 pounds of potash. Simple math calculations for a five-ton hay yield show that removal of 100 pounds of phosphate and 300 pounds of potash are not uncommon. In fact, potash is so valuable for alfalfa production that most top alfalfa producers regularly apply 300 pounds of potash or more per acre to their established stands.

It is difficult to appreciate how much potassium is removed by a productive alfalfa stand, and underfertilization of alfalfa is common. Soil K levels can become depleted in only a couple of years, resulting in lower yields and reduced winter survival.

No agronomist would responsibly recommend the application of any nutrient to a crop without a soil test to determine existing soil nutrient levels. However, too few producers use soil testing to base their nutrient and manure inputs.

The best method to determine alfalfa top dress requirements is to use a soil test. Without a soil test, fertilizer additions can be based on estimated crop removal rates and crop records.

When and how often should you apply topdress fertilizer? The recommended program to maintain alfalfa production is to split potash applications two times a season. Immediately following first cutting and early fall are the best times. By applying after first cut, the producer is providing nutrients to the second and third crops. Applying nutrients early in the fall allows the plant to enter the winter dormancy period in optimal fertility status. It is critical, however, that fall fertilizers are applied well in advance of fall dormancy and freezing soil conditions.

Avoid application when soils are soft — such as early spring, when injury to crowns is likely. Split applications to avoid salt injury and provide nutrients at optimum time periods. High rates applied to wet foliage can also cause leaf injury. Apply topdress as soon after harvest as possible.

Alfalfa absorbs most nutrients from the six to eight inches of the soil. Unlike nitrogen, phosphorous and potassium move very little through the soil. For this reason, alfalfa fertility programs must begin with optimum soil fertility level at establishment with topdress applied to meet plant removal rates.

GOOD MANAGERS CREATE, NOT CONSUME, WORKPLACE ENERGY

John Berry
Ag Marketing Agent
Lehigh County

Remember the four "classic" functions of management — plan, organize, lead, and control — that you learned in school? Although these basic functions are fine for taking care of most of your day-to-day management duties, they fail to reflect the new reality of the workplace and the new partnership of managers and workers.

Today's managers need a new set of management functions based on forging a strong employee/employer relationship:

• Energize. Today's managers need to be masters of making things happen. You can be the best analyst in the world or the most highly organized executive on the planet, but if the level of excitement you generate can be likened more to a dish rag than to a spark plug, then you may never have what it takes to create a truly great environment. Great managers create far more energy than they consume. Instead of taking energy from the organization, the best managers channel and amplify energy to the organization.

• Empower. Great managers allow their employees to do great work, they empower them to excel. This is a vital function of management because even the greatest managers in the world cannot succeed all by themselves. To achieve the goals of the organization, managers depend on the skills that their employees offer. Effective management is the leveraging of the efforts of every member of a work group toward a common purpose. If you are constantly doing your employees' work for them, not only have you lost the advantage of leverage that your employees can provide, but you are also putting yourself on the path to stress.

• Support. In an open environment, employees can bring up questions and concerns. In fact, they are encouraged to do so. When employees see their managers are open to new ideas, they are more likely to offer suggestions and new ideas.

• Communicate. Information is power, and as the speed of business continues to accelerate, information must be communicated to employees faster than ever before. Constant change and increasing turbulence in the business environment necessitates more communication, not less.

Dairy Management Inc. Goes Back To School To Increase Dairy Consumption

ROSEMONT, IL — As kids head off to school with new outfits, school supplies and textbooks, Dairy Management Inc. is arming local school food service officials with new incentives to encourage students to drink more milk.

Local farmer-funded programs provide important tools to help school food service workers keep milk cold. These programs also help teachers demonstrate dairy's nutritional value in the classroom, according to Bill Haines, vice president, business to business marketing of Dairy Management Inc.

"Schools provide a great setting to reach kids with milk messages. Nationally, school food service programs account for more than six percent of total milk consumption," says Haines. During the average school year, more than 100 pounds of milk per student moves through school breakfast programs alone, adds Haines.

Despite this significant opportunity to increase kids' milk consumption, Dairy Management Inc. and health professionals alike express concern that some students complain about how milk is served in schools.

"Market research indicates students who are regularly served warm milk in leaky cartons and with limited flavor options may turn away from milk — and its health benefits — for a lifetime," says Haines.

To help bring more students back to milk, Dairy Management Inc. developed materials to train school food service workers regarding proper handling and cooling guidelines for milk.

"Partnering with the National Dairy Council, the 'Cold is Cool!' school food service program reaches roughly 35,000 schools nationally (30 percent of all school districts)," says Haines. "We're training school food service personnel at local schools to serve milk the way students want it — fresh, cold and good-tasting."

The program includes a training video (available in English and Spanish) that Dairy Management Inc. uses when conducting workshops with school food service professionals. The training video and related materials were reviewed by the American School Food Service Association and the National Restaurant Association.

The American Dairy Association/Dairy Council Middle Atlantic (ADA/DC Middle Atlantic) and Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program (PDPP), which contracts with the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Mid East (ADADC Mid East) are the local planning and management organizations responsible for increasing demand for U.S.-produced dairy products on behalf of America's dairy farmers. ADADC Mid East and ADA/DC Middle Atlantic work closely with Dairy Management Inc., the national dairy promotion organization, to implement dairy promotion, education and research programs nationwide. The dairy farmer checkoff program funds both organizations.

Since the program began in 1984, dairy promotion organizations have helped sell more than 225 billion pounds of total milk above the amount projected by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Dairy Industry To Promote Cheese At Maryland Wine Festival

PHILADELPHIA — What type of wine goes best with your favorite cheese? To provide the answer to that question and others about cheese, the dairy industry is sponsoring a booth at the 2000 Maryland Wine Festival to be held Sept. 16-17 at the Carroll County Farm Museum in Westminster, Md.

The American Dairy Association/ Dairy Council Middle Atlantic (ADA/DC Middle Atlantic) and the Maryland Dairy Industry Association (MDIA) have teamed up to tantalize your taste buds and enhance your knowledge of cheese at the annual festival, which attracts more than 25,000 people.

The two groups will offer cheese products, recipes and other materials from their joint booth on the spacious front porch of the main farmhouse. They will join more than 80 other sponsors promoting Maryland's agricultural industry.

"We are fortunate to have such a prime booth location," said MDIA President Myron Wilhide. "Combined with the excellent facilities of the Carroll County Farm Museum, we look forward to promoting an important and popular dairy product — cheese — at this nationally renowned event."

Cheese consumption has increased over the last two decades and is now at a record high. More than 200 domestic varieties are available for consumers today.

"Cheese is such a versatile food," said Mary Beth Sodus, a registered dietitian with ADA/DC Middle Atlantic. "Not only is it delicious, but the varieties are endless. It really is perfect for any meal or snack. And it's a nice complement to your favorite wine."

In addition to providing information about cheese, ADA/DC Middle Atlantic and MDIA will be promoting milk's dietary benefits and the dairy industry's contributions to the state's economy. Wilhide of Detour, Md., will join fellow MDIA members and other dairy specialists to answer questions and discuss current issues affecting Maryland's dairy farmers.

'We are pleased to be working with the American Dairy Association/ Dairy Council Middle Atlantic to enhance public awareness of dairy's importance to Maryland agriculture," Wilhide said.

The Maryland Wine Festival is located off Route 32 at the Carroll County Farm Museum, 500 South Center Street in Westminster, Md. Festival gates will open at 10 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 16, and at noon on Sunday, Sept. 17. The festivities will conclude at 6 p.m. each day.

Milk Marketing Board Announces August Class I Price To Be Paid To Dairy Farmers

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Recently the Milk Marketing Board (MMB) announced the prices to be paid to Pennsylvania dairy farmers for August Class I milk as an average of $15.60 in the western areas of the commonwealth.

Paid will be an average of $16.09 in the central and eastern areas of the commonwealth.

Class I milk is beverage type milk.

These prices do include the current over-order premium of $1.00 per one hundred pounds of milk, and the fuel adjustment premium of $.25 per one hundred pounds of milk.

Since 1988, the MMB has mandated over-order premiums on Class I mild because of adverse conditions affecting the Pennsylvania dairy farmer.

Chairwoman Beverly R. Minor announced that since the inception of the MMB's over-order premium in 1988, Pennsylvania dairy farmers have received an additional $211,472,000 in income.

Forage Weeds: Fall Considerations

Del Voight
Lebanon County Agent

Each spring there are always a few calls about what to do with poor stands of pasture, alfalfa, and controlling perennials — weeds such as dandelion and hemp dogbane. Each year I need to explain the same research-based opinions.

The fall is the best time to prepare for spring. Applications of systemic herbicides now will increase their effectiveness almost twofold.

In fact, Bill Curran showed that on hemp dogbane, a difference of 40 percent control, with spring gaining a 60 percent control of hemp dogbane and fall providing 90 percent control of the weed.

The only way to completely kill the established plant and have no recovery the next year is to fall-apply systemic herbicides such as Roundup, Touch Down, 2,4-D, or Banvel. One might control seedlings during the growing season, but I am referring to those plants with large root systems that can compete much more than a few seedlings.

What is the best time? Penn State studies show that most plants will respond better to treatment of systemic products shortly before a frost (early October) if the weeds have green leaves and are in good condition. Not all perennials are the same — hemp dogbane responded best in his research to early September treatments. In fields infested with perennials, producers need to harvest the corn or soybeans, then let the field green up this fall and apply a systemic herbicide when the weather warms to allow for better eradication of the perennials.

With grass stands, fall is the time that the grass pushes more roots and will respond to nitrogen applications and get ahead of many weeds that are declining with the colder temperatures. In addition, the natural freeze and thaw allows a frost seeding that will take root if grass seed is overseeded in the fall. This allows producers to really thicken up grass stands better than any other time of the year.

If p and K are optimum, I like to see a minimum of 100 pounds of urea per acre applied in the fall to grass stands. In addition, where stands are poor, I like to see a half rate of the desired grass overseeded with a spinner just after the first frost.

Alfalfa is a different "beast" altogether. Many producers opt to leave a failing stand go to spring and make first cutting and follow with corn. This is logical at a glance, but put a pencil to the loss in quality of the alfalfa, yield loss of both alfalfa and the delay in corn planting, and soon one will find it's a foolish endeavor.

The trick is to assess stands in the fall by using an alfalfa square (simply a one-foot square wire or wood outline), throw it randomly in the field, and count plants within the square. If there are less than four plants per foot, kill it this fall and plant full-season corn in spring. If, however, you find a decent stand of more than four plants per foot, then consider leaving the stand for another year or if you have to because of forage need. Plan to harvest first cutting and plan for silage harvest using sorghum for drought-prone areas and corn for others.

Alfalfa produces an enormous amount of nitrogen (commonly 100-120 pounds per acre) released from its nodules on the roots, which enables some of the best corn crops to be grown after, if killed in the fall and planted early in the spring. There is no question this is the best use of the alfalfa stand.

There are ways to make better decisions to either kill the alfalfa in the fall or to let it go to after first cutting. The decision to make is how many plants are there right now this fall.

As far as alfalfa and weed control, there is no time like fall to take care of chickweed and henbit. These winner annuals reduce yield and lower digestibility because of the weeds' poor quality stemmy nature by harvest time. An application of Pursuit applied just after last cutting will kill emerged weeds as well as leave a residual to keep these weeds from coming up throughout the winter.

Manage perennial weeds with systemic products such as Banvel and 2,4-D, overseed grass stands, and assess alfalfa stands in the fall to avoid spring worries in 2001.

Charm Arrives At Swine Show Number Six For Amy At Denver

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

DENVER (Lancaster Co.) — Amy Becker has experienced her share of "curtain calls," picking up five reserve champion hog trophies in her 4-H career. But never a supreme.

That all changed Tuesday night at the Denver Fair, when she picked up her first grand champion market hog trophy with her 249-pound Hampshire crossbred gilt.

Amy, 19, won five reserves: three times at Elizabethtown Fair, once at the Lancaster County FFA Roundup Show, and once at the Manheim Farm Show.

(She picked up one reserve trophy at Elizabethtown this year.)

Supreme champion swine at the Denver Fair Swine Show went to Amy Becker, her first-ever grand champion swine. Judge for the show was Dan Atkins.

The daughter of Marlin and Nancy Becker, Manheim, and Manheim Central High School graduate, is soon to complete a 15-month culinary art training program at York Tech.

Dan Atkins, show judge from Lebanon, noted Amy's champion, from Class 5, was "probably the most complete, trendy hog in the show this evening," he said. "It put together muscle expression, leanness, and frame."

Amy said she and her dad selected the hog at the Mason-Dixon Feeder Pig Sale in Manheim last May.

Reserve went to the Blue Butt (Hampshire/Yorkshire crossbred) hog shown by Nathan Manbeck, Rehrersburg. The 239-pound Class 3 winner, a barrow, is homebred.

Nathan, 15, son of Norman and Karen, is a freshman at Tulpehocken High School. This is Nathan's first reserve champion at Denver.

Nathan plans to show at the county roundup at the end of the month. This was his first champion hog, though he exhibited two second-place hogs at Kutztown this year.

Denver Swine Show showmanship champion went to Cody Drace.

There were 26 exhibitors and 49 hogs.

Selling Produce To Supermarkets In Dickson City Topic Of Meeting

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Pennsylvania Farm Link, in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Produce Promotion Program of the Department of Agriculture, will sponsor a meeting for farmers who want to learn more about selling their produce to supermarkets.

Growers are invited to attend a meeting beginning at 6:30 p.m. in the produce sections of Wegmans Market in Dickson City Sept. 27.

Wegmans Food Market, Inc. is a 59-store supermarket chain with stores in New York, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey. According to Robert Finn, produce manager, "The family-owned company, founded in 1916, is recognized as an industry leader and innovator."

Finn will discuss their experiences working directly with farmers, their preferences for quality produce, and their "wish list" of quantities and packaging. Russell Gunton, regional director for the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, will discuss the Pennsylvania Produce Promotion Program, the program's objectives, and how it assists buyers and sellers. Farm Link information and other marketing sessions sponsored by the non-profit organization will be available at the meeting.

Wegman's Market is located off of exit 57A of Rt. 81. Take business route 6 east for 1½ miles. The store is on the left and set back from the road with a McDonald's at the entrance.

Capitol Region Agronomy Team Report

NO-TILL PASTURE RENOVATION

Mark Goodson
Extension Agent
Agronomy, Soils
York County

While researching the topic of pasture renovation for the section, Foraging Around, I came across the following article by Lynn D. Hoffman, Penn State research associate, Department of Agronomy and manager of the agronomy research farm at Rockspring (retired). This classic article still stands as a valuable instruction on the topic, so I submit it again for us to learn from Lynn's experience and wisdom.

Pasture renovation in Pennsylvania has taken many turns at academic interest over the past three or four decades. Unfortunately, when we look at the pasture acreage on most farms, the interest at the farm level has been casual to say the least. If we adopted 1950s pasture renovation technology on the farm today, we could nearly double the productivity of easily half the pasture acreage throughout the Northeast.

With the above admission behind us, we will attempt to develop renovation plans using current technology.

Early success with no-till corn has led us to believe we should carry this practice into forage and small grain production. The major emphasis of this paper will be on no-till forage production. Many guidelines offered below for successful establishment of forage crops are obviously applicable for no-till production of most agronomic crops.

Successful No-Till Seeding of Forage Crops

One's first thoughts of no-till establishment often are based on the term "sod seeding." This concept is of establishing or reestablishing a forage species, or combination of species, into an already existing grass or grass-legume sward. Many, many hours of research and extension effort was spent in the first few years of the '70s toward developing this concept. While success in this area is possible in Pennsylvania, farmers are practicing no-till forage establishment following crops such as corn, soybeans, small grains, and others. This approach offers the most logical and consistent establishment of no-till forage crops. Crop rotation has been recognized as an important agronomic tool. It becomes no less important in no-till. In fact, it becomes an effective method to alter the environment to the best advantage of the forage seeding, while reducing, somewhat, the dependence on the system for certain pesticides.

Sod Seeding

Successful forage establishment will depend on how well one plans and how well that plan is implemented. A sound decision must be made concerning why the legumes were lost in the present sward. If winter kill and/or overgrazing are the reason, then you may consider replanting the same species. If disease was the problem and there will always be some plant disease present, then you should seriously consider planting a different species in that particular field.

Following are some guidelines to use when planning a no-till sod seeding.

Field Evaluation

1. What weeds are present? If Canada thistle or other deep rooted perennial weeds are obviously a problem, there will be a necessity for two or more applications of 2,4-D and/or Clarity to control tem weeds. Clarity will also go a long way toward controlling brushy species in an old pasture. However, Clarity should not be used within one month of seeding and should be applied the fall before. A quart of 2,4-D low volatile ester plus one half pint of Clarity applied in September or October will rid the field of many broadleafed species of weeds. By repeating the 2,4-D spray in the spring before seeding, most of the weeds germinating since the fall spraying will be eliminated. If the field has quackgrass, two well-timed applications of Gramoxone Extra may be necessary. One, either the fall before or in early spring and, after allowing the grass to recover, apply the second spray and seed immediately.

2. Is the area stony or wet? If the area is extremely wet, perhaps corrective measures to improve drainage are possible. Otherwise, it would be best to wait until midsummer to make the seeding. Excessive stoniness may mean poor placement with some planters or extreme machinery wear on others.

3. Is the field fenced well? Management of grazing both before and after seeding is an important step in a successful seeding. Good fences make the job easier. If fences need repairs, this should be done well ahead of time.

Most failures in sod seeding have been the result of inadequate preparation and lack of understanding of the field situation.

Soil Test

A soil test taken up to a year ahead of time will give plenty of time to apply limestone, if needed. If the field is wet or difficult to get on with equipment, it may be necessary to wait until an opportune time for liming. A soil test is the only reliable way to know whether there are major plant food deficiencies. Again, lead-time is important.

Lime And Fertilizer

Limestone applied six or more months in advance of seeding will give the necessary time for pH change to occur. Since limestone will not be mixed into the plow layer, a longer period is needed to produce a pH change in the rooting zone. Though phosphorus can and should be added at the time of seeding, there is also a good reason to add some ahead of time if the soil test shows a major deficiency. Potassium should be added ahead of seeding where any definite deficiency is noted.

Nitrogen should not be added ahead of seeding for sod-seeding legumes.

Soil test reports will differentiate between no-till and conventional seedings. For no-till seedings, no nitrogen recommended. Nitrogen applied just prior to or at the time of seeding will stimulate existing grass, thus promoting excessive competition for the new seeding. Nitrogen may be added after establishment for promoting growth of rye or sudan x sorghum hybrid.

Graze Or Clip

If the area to be sod-seeded is suitable for grazing, the best method of reducing the competition of the existing sod is to heavily graze the field several times prior to seeding. Though grazing is normally considered a poor management technique, this is one time when it is beneficial. Not only does overgrazing rid the area of excess top growth, but it improves the effectiveness of Gramoxone Extra applications.

Removing excess top growth is particularly important when the Midland ZIP-seeder is used because this piece of equipment depends on a shoe-type opener closely following a straight disk sod cutter. Excessive top growth can inhibit the effectiveness of this and other equipment used for sod-seeding. When adequate numbers of grazing animals are not available for removal of the top growth, the next best procedure is to mow or clip the area with all clippings removed for hay or silage. When grazing or close clipping are not feasible, an application of Gramoxone Extra two to three weeks before seeding is recommended. A second application will be required at time of planting. See the current Agronomy Guide for specific recommendations.

Apply Herbicides

Much of this topic was discussed under field evaluation, but it is important enough to repeat some phases.

Herbicides replace land preparation in sod-seeding. These chemicals are far less expensive and lower in energy consumption than the numerous operations necessary to prepare and seed a field conventionally. When perennial weeds are a problem, it may be possible to get by with one quart per acre of 2,4-D low volatile ester applied three to four weeks before seeding.

Contact Herbicides At Seeding

Regardless of what spray applications went on prior to seeding, the most important application is a contact herbicide as close to time of seeding as possible. Spray prior to planting, not after. One pint of Gramoxone Extra plus surfactant just prior to seeding has worked well for us in Pennsylvania. If the field has been grazed closely, this application has been extremely effective in reducing crop top growth and early competition for new seeding. Roundup Ultra can be used in place of Gramoxone Extra. More detailed instructions are available in the Agronomy Guide.

Seed At Best Time

The conditions of the field, seed being sown, and the existing species determine the best time of seeding. If the field tends to be wet, then the seeding should probably be scheduled for midsummer. The flush of spring growth can be pastured several times before seeding or one or more cuttings of the hay crop may be taken off. Regardless of the condition of the field, this is often a good time for seeding because the existing sod will be at its lowest vigor. Throughout most of Pennsylvania, there will be time for the new seedings to gain sufficient growth to be winter hardy, if the seeding is made prior to Aug. 15. Use the seeding time that has worked best for your particular geographic area.

All species of grasses and legumes have individual characteristics that need to be understood if these species are to be used effectively. Alfalfa, red clover, and ladino clover can all be seeded early because they sprout quickly and can grow in cooler weather. Birdsfoot trefoil and crownvetch should not be seeded in early spring because they are slow in germinating and cannot withstand the competition of recovering sod. Timothy should go through a cold period to germinate well. This means that little timothy will be evident in a seeding made midsummer until the following year. Tall fescue and ryegrass will stool out and develop a good root system during the fall and winter whereas orchardgrass and reed canarygrass are probably better seeded in the late spring.

One should recognize that the probability of pressures to the new seeding from disease, insects, and weeds are much greater in sod-seeding than when establishing forages following other crops in a rotation. For this reason, I urge consideration of a short rotation to enable utilization of a wider choice of herbicides, break the disease and insect cycles, and set the stage for more successful no-till forage crop establishment.

No-Till Forage In Crop Rotation

Sound crop rotations make agronomic sense in any farming program. They are invaluable tools in no-till forage crop management. There are crops that no-till perennial forages can successfully follow in a pasture program.

With good herbicide programs aided by creative crop manipulation and other sound management practices, we could easily triple or quadruple the yields of most Northeast pastures. The technology is here. Only the genuine desire of the farming public needs to be cultivated.

Certified Angus Beef Program Signs As Olympic Supplier

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — The Certified Angus Beef (CAB) Program is joining the team of Olympic Suppliers as the Official Branded Beef Supplier for the 2002 Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games. The company also becomes the Official Supplier of Packaged and Processed Beef of the U.S. Olympic Teams.

In its agreement with the Olympic Properties of the United States (OPUS), a joint marketing effort between SLOC and the U.S. Olympic Committee (USOC), the CAB Program will provide meats for the 2002 Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games in the following areas: Certified Angus Beef frankfurters, barbecue beef and quick-n-easy pot roast and a variety of Certified Angus Beef deli meat products. The products will be served at all venues, the Olympic Village and sponsor hospitality areas.

The CAB Program, based in Wooster, Ohio, will also be an official supplier to the U.S. Olympic Team through Dec. 31, 2004, supporting the team in the 2000 Olympic Games in Sydney, Australia, 2002 Olympic Winter Games in Salt Lake City, and 2004 Olympic Games in Athens, Greece.

"The Certified Angus Beef brand symbolizes a quality product, and the Salt Lake Organizing Committee is committed to staging quality Games at every level," said Mitt Romney, SLOC President and CEO.

"Their participation in the Games assures the best possible products will be served to our Olympic and Paralympic visitors."

"The United States Olympic Committee is proud to recognize the CAB Program for its contributions to the athletes of America's Team and for its role in helping make the Salt Lake City Games a tremendous success in 2002," added Dick Schultz, USOC Executive Director and OPUS President and CEO.

"We are proud to be joining the Olympic and Paralympic Teams. What has made the CAB Program the leading branded beef program is our commitment to providing a quality food product," said Jim Riemann, executive director for the CAB Program.

"Consumers know they can rely on Certified Angus Beef products' consistent quality. That reliability has allowed us to gain 65 percent of the branded beef market."

"We are thrilled to be working with the CAB Program," said Don Pritchard, SLOC Director of Food Services. "The CAB Program is the industry leader when it comes to quality beef products, and the Olympic Games are known for excellence. SLOC is committed to providing the total Olympic experience, and these food products will play an integral role."

The CAB Program becomes the 11th OPUS supplier. Overall, OPUS has 27 corporate participants to date for the 2002 Games, including suppliers and sponsors.

"Cow Sense" Workshop Held In Cumberland County

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Dairy workers developed their "cow sense" recently at a workshop sponsored by Penn State's new Dairy Alliance. Dan Mains hosted the event at his dairy farm near Carlisle. "Cow Sense: Detecting Problem Cows Before and After Calving," was designed to help people quickly recognize when a cow is becoming sick and to perform a basic examination of the animal. Disease, especially in transition cows, is a major cause of lost production and profit on dairy farms. If the people working with cows can quickly identify problem animals, then the speed and effectiveness of treatment will be greatly increased.

Participants learned to observe a group of cows from a distance and detect those that might have a problem. They learned how to recognize common symptoms, and which cows are most likely to have particular diseases. The participants actually examined several groups of cows and practiced picking out individuals that might be showing signs of trouble.

Later, the participants were divided into small groups of three to five learners and each group was assigned to a veterinarian. The small groups had the opportunity to perform a hands-on examination of a cow. The veterinarian demonstrated basic examination procedures and had each participant practice the procedures. They listened with a stethoscope to various internal sounds such as the heart, lungs, and rumen. They also learned how to "ping" for a displaced abomasum, how to test for ketosis and mastitis, and other useful and practical skills.

Cow Sense participants were equipped with durable learning materials that they could use on their farms. The materials were designed so that participants can teach their co-workers some of the skills they learned at the workshop. They also learned how people's learning styles differ and some strategies to compensate for that. The workshop's designers hope that participants will be able to help their co-workers develop better cow sense as well.

At the Dan Mains dairy farm, workshop participants are taught "cow sense."

Lancaster County Conservancy Launches 2000 Annual Appeal

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Y2K, Y2K, Y2K...for an entire year that is almost all anyone talked or wrote about.

When January 1, 2000 came and went and nothing catastrophic happened, Y2K completely dropped out of common parlance. So why would The Lancaster County Conservancy choose as the theme for its 2000 annual appeal "New Land For The New Millennium?"

It really is quite simple. Significant milestones often evoke memories of the past as well as prompt one to look ahead and plan for the future. During the past several years, the Conservancy has experienced unprecedented growth. The number of acres protected has risen from 926 in 1996 to 1,829 today and the number of members and supporters has increased from 525 in 1996 to 1,339 today. The number of preservation opportunities has increased tenfold.

Poised at the gateway of a new millennium, what new challenges lie ahead?

The preservation of future natural treasurers and the fulfillment of inherent stewardship responsibilities — these are the missions of The Lancaster County Conservancy.

Spearheading this year's annual appeal is Willis W. Shenk, a Lancaster County native who is chairman of the board of Steinman Enterprises, which owns Lancaster Newspapers as well as commercial printing and radio broadcasting businesses.

Administration Offers Grants

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr. recently announced that rural youth organizations may apply for direct grants and matching funds to support their educational projects and activities under the Agriculture Department's Agriculture and Rural Youth Organization Grant Program.

"Our youth are the future of agriculture, and we are pleased to offer these grants," Hayes said. "The grants will help these organizations expand activities that educate our youth in issues that affect their agricultural communities and rural Pennsylvania."

A total of $25,000 is available for the grant program, which is funded by proceeds from a trust fund through the USDA.

Organizations may apply for direct grants of up to $2,500. Applications must be postmarked by Dec. 1 to be considered.

Grants can be used by 4-H and FFA organizations and agricultural vocational-technical classes to fund educational projects, programs, seminars, or field trips to increase awareness of agricultural and rural issues.

Recipients will be selected by a 13-member Agriculture and Rural Youth Grant Board.

Applications and additional information about the program will soon be available on the department's website, which can be accessed through the Pennsylvania homepage at www.state.pa.us or directly at www.pda.state.pa.us, or by contacting Carl Muller in the department's Bureau of Market Development at (717) 787-3181.

Preventing Foodborne Illness

approximately 400,000 cases per year in which SE could have been a cause of foodborne contamination, yet the total confirmed cases of ALL salmonella was only 40,000.

But campylobacter remains the number one cause of foodborne illness in the U.S. Meat birds can frequently test positive. However, the bacteria are readily killed by cooking — and are not as stable outside their environment as SE, noted Kradel.

Consumers are wary and international markets are increasingly concerned about antibiotic use for disease prevention or growth promotion, according to Kradel.

A controversial issue, one of extreme concern, noted Kradel, is the development of antibiotic-resistant organisms that can affect humans. Can the use of antibiotics in animals develop resistant strains of organisms in humans, resulting in real public health threats?

Kradel noted his impression is that the concern, for the public health professionals, is "settled in their mind," he said. "We do contribute to the problem as well as misuse (the antibiotics) in human medicine."

The wrong uses of antibiotics in humans could be a significant issue. "Inappropriate use in people is a major, maybe the major issue, in developing antibiotic resistance," Kradel said.

Eventually the use of antibiotics for disease prevention and growth promotion is likely to be prohibited. Its use for treatment may be by veterinary prescription only. These are many recommendations recently made by the World Health Organization.

At the center of intensive research and surveillance programs regarding antibiotic use is the National Antimicrobial Resistance Monitoring System, or NARMS.

Kradel noted the success of one program, the Pennsylvania Egg Quality Assurance Program (PEQAP), now used as a model nationwide to control SE in eggs.

In 1992, at the start of PEQAP, 22 percent of samples tested SE-positive. In 1999, that number had dropped to 1.4 percent, and in August this year, to 0.87 percent.

This points to the success of the program, at floor level, in controlling SE.

About 315 flocks in the state are enrolled in PEQAP.

"The overall reduction in SE with PEQAP has been tremendous," said Kradel.

Already a National Egg Safety Program has been proposed using PEQAP as a model. But the initial draft of the program will be delayed past September, according to Kradel.

In red meat processing, a standard Hazard Analysis Critical Control Points (HACCP) program is mandatory. The HACCP program is "science-based," rather than on sight, touch, or smell. Though some groups are challenging HACCP, the program may be helping reduce foodborne illness.

The technology continues to improve. Already, in western Pennsylvania, a company sells pasteurized in-shell eggs. Of course, the prices of the eggs are 35-40 cents more per dozen.

Some individuals believe it may be possible to wipe out, at the farm level, all food safety challenges. But that is impossible, noted Kradel, giving our current technology and the realities associated with animal production.

Perhaps it is because, in this country, we have "gotten too clean," that competing organisms can't help us in our fight against the insidious bacteria and viruses that have been in food animals for millennia. But great progress has been made in fighting SE while educational efforts about food preparation will prevent campylobacter problems.

The recent controversy over West Nile Virus (WNV), in which virus has been found in many Northeast states, continues to draw concern in the poultry industry. Kradel said, "We do not believe it is an issue at this time, nor do we think it will be."

To date, there has been no evidence of WNV in Pennsylvania. WNV can transiently (for a short time) infect poultry, but it does not make them sick nor can it pass the virus on to other animals or people.

This year the virus has affected humans in New Jersey and New York. Last year about six people died. This year, about eight people died and about 60 were infected and recovered.

Pennsylvania is spending $10 million per year to monitor and institute preventive measures to combat WNV.

A big issue on human health arose when, recently, in Walkerton, near Ontario, Canada, the well water supply became contaminated with E. coli O157. About 2,000 people out of a population of 7,000 became ill, resulting in about 6-16 deaths. The infection was caused by contaminated wells and a failure of the chlorination system. During construction, wells were not properly sealed. According to the poultry veterinarian, animal production units in the area were incriminated as the source of the E. coli O157.

As for animal disease issues, highly pathogenic avian influenza (HPAI) has afflicted 423 flocks in Italy, resulting in depopulation of 18 million birds. The strain, H7N1, started as low pathogenic and mutated into a high pathogenic virus.

In 1924, according to Kradel, live bird markets in New York were the source of a disease subsequently identified as fowl plague (another name for HPAI). Today, about 40 percent of more than 83 live bird markets in New York and New Jersey test positive for A.I. About 93 percent of the serotype is the low-pathogenic H7N2, with 4 percent H3N2 and 3 percent other serotype.

Despite preventive efforts of all concerned, the rates of positive samples in markets have not decreased, said Kradel. The virus can become highly pathogenic any time. The virus then could affect flocks, as it did in Italy, resulting in depopulations not seen in the U.S. since the 1983-1984 eradication of H5N2.

Bioterrorism — or incorporating diseases into health regimens as political or other forms of threat — also concerns officials. As a result, a vaccination repository is being developed at a cost of $50 million. Also, a reference diagnostic laboratory is being assembled in Louisiana to help quickly identify and manage such threats.

But what about plans to eradicate foodborne pathogens altogether?

Rather than trying to eradicate all these bacteria, such as campylobacter, a better method would be to incorporate good management strategies. Because if the industry were to get rid of salmonella and campylobacter, "what could end up taking its place?" said Kradel. "It could be worse."

Maryland Dairy Industry Association To Hold 2000 Annual Meeting In Westminster

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Representatives of Maryland's $1 billion dairy industry will gather in Westminster, Maryland, on Thursday, November 30, for the Maryland Dairy Industry Association's (MDIA) 2000 Annual Meeting. Headquarters is Wilhelm, Ltd. Catering's conference center at 1011 Baltimore Boulevard (Md. Rt. 140), at the edge of the Carroll County seat town.

Theme is "A Team Approach to Dairying," featuring Dr. William Heald of Penn State University, and Carl Theunis, chief executive officer of Tinedale Farms in Kaukauna, Wisconsin. Both will outline plans and benefits for bringing all members of the dairy "team" together for maximum profit and productivity. Events are scheduled to begin at 9 a.m., and conclude with a silent auction of dairy equipment and supplies at 3:30 p.m.

"Recent industry trends have led dairy farmers to pool their resources with family members and other associates to achieve more economical operations," says MDIA president Myron L. Wilhide, a fifth-generation dairy producer from Detour, (Carroll County). "MDIA believes that maximizing returns through a team approach will be a timely and relevant topic for dairy producers in Maryland and the Mid-Atlantic region."

Selected industry speakers and state officials are scheduled to attend, as well as exhibitors representing cooperatives, animal health companies, and other suppliers supporting the important dairy industry. Other speakers will brief producers and industry representatives on environmental and economic issues affecting dairy operations, and present an innovative team approach for total dairy quality farm management.

"MDIA's Annual Meetings have become one of the largest gatherings for the state's dairy industry," says MDIA vice-president and program co-chair Will Godwin of Hagerstown (Washington County). "As dairy producers face new challenges with production, nutrient management, and product marketing, obtaining new ideas for maximizing resources will be essential for the continued viability of independent family-owned dairy farms."

Virginia 4-H Campers Get A Lesson On Beef

DALEVILLE, Va. — During Bedford County 4-H Camp held at Smith Mountain Lake 4-H Center this summer, 50 youth had a lesson on beef cookery, nutrition and food safety thanks to Virginia's beef producers' $1-per-head checkoff. The Virginia Beef Industry Council (VBIC) provided Helen Smith, Bedford County Extension Agent, with a $50 mini-grant for the purchase of sirloin steak and other supplies for the "Fun with Foods" Class.

"This is the fourth year that we have taught "Fun with Foods" as one of the classes at Bedford's 4-H Camp and we are very appreciative of the mini-grant from the Virginia Beef Industry Council to enable us to teach this," Helen W. Smith, Bedford County extension agent says. "It is a hands-on food preparation class that the children like a lot."

Youth prepared a beef and vegetable stir-fry recipe with guidance from Mary Ford, program assistant. Other activities of the week long class included nutrition discussion and explanation of the Food Guide Pyramid.

"It is important to the beef industry to educate youth, our future consumers, about the nutritional benefits of beef and proper preparation methods," Cindy Boggs, VBIC director of consumer information, says. "Our mini-grant program is a simple, yet effective way to reach consumers of any age by working in partnership with Virginia Cooperative Extension."

VBIC provides $50 grants for purchasing beef and other supplies to 4-H and home economics extension agents presenting consumer beef education programs. To qualify, the program should focus on beef cookery, nutrition, food safety or other beef consumer issues. Receive an application by calling VBIC at (540) 992-1992 or e-mail cboggs@vabeef.org.

Supreme Junior Beef Named At York Fair

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — Supreme champions in the York Fair's junior beef breeding show struck a marked contrast, with a high-sheened black Angus taking the bull honors and a glistening white Charolais pegging the heifer trophy.

The champion and supreme titled Angus bull is a 2-year-old, owned by junior exhibitor Cory Thompson, Wellsville. "Cedar Hill CT Keystone" turned two in April, having already earned grand champion honors at the 2000 Pennsylvania Farm Show, then added to his show winnings with the reserve junior championship at the Atlantic National Show, held in Timonium, Maryland, in May. Sire of the show winner is JDH Keystone Ext.

Cory, 13, exhibited six head of beef cattle to the York Fair's junior and open class shows, about half of his own growing herd maintained on the family's Cedar Hill farm at Wellsville.

"2C," a growthy Charolais heifer, snagged the Supreme female honors in both the junior and open class shows at the York Fair for junior exhibitor Katie Myers, Dallastown. A January-1999-born junior yearling, "2C" was also the breed champion at the recent Maryland State Fair, as well as breed reserve at the August New York State Fair.

Katie, 16, is a junior exhibitor of several years and owns six head of beef cattle she exhibits in 4-H and open class competition.

Breed category champions in the junior show included April Daugherty, who had both champion and reserve Hereford, as well as champion Simmental. Reserve champion Simmental was exhibited by Aubrey Eyler. Kelly Hain exhibited both the champion and reserve in the Other Breeds category, with her Red Angus entries. Reserve champion Angus went to Brett Bishard and Katie Myers exhibited the reserve champion Charolais.

Champion junior beef showman was Hope Long, topping reserve winner Richard

Suffolk, Southdown Share York Fair Junior Sheep Supremes

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — A growthy and stylish homebred Southdown captured supreme champion honors at the York Fair's junior sheep breeding show, exhibited by veteran 4-H shepherd Jen Flinchbaugh.

The win added to a successful show season for "Lucille," the Southdown champion named by Flinchbaugh for the classic country hit song. Earlier in her travels across the tanbark trail, "Lucille" was selected best in her age class at the national junior Southdown show held in Springfield, Massachusetts.

Taking the Supreme ram honors was a tall, stretchy Suffolk bred and raised by 15-year-old shepherd Travis Flory, Red Lion. The February ram's top win added to a successful show at the York Fair for Flory, who is already looking forward to traveling to the upcoming Keystone show with his winning homebred.

Other top winners in the breed divisions of the junior sheep show included Tony Haugh, Red Lion, champion and reserve Cheviot, Matt Bankert, Hanover, with the champion and reserve Dorsets. Hampshire honors went to Megan Heath, Fawn Grove, while Krissy Stem, also of Fawn Grove, had the champion Shropshire.

Jen Flinchbaugh snagged all the top Southdown honors. Suffolk banners were split between Travis Flory, with the champion ram and reserve champion ewe, and Mike Burrell, Dover, who exhibited the champion ewe.

Juniors also shared honors in the numerous "shepherding" competitions. Champion showman was Kelly Jo Bankert, Red Lion, with Lindsay Jones, East Berlin, in the reserve champion spot. Lindsay Jones was champion of the blocking and grooming, with Susan Richardson, Fawn Grove, taking reserve honors.

Jen Flinchbaugh topped the shepherd's bred and owned category, with Lindsay Jones the runner-up. Champion fitter was Travis Flory, over reserve champion Lindsay Jones.

Six-Year-Old Shepherd Snags York Fair Sheep Show

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — Six-year-old Cortney Flory enjoyed the ribbons, the banners and the honors she carried back to her family's sheep pens at the York Fair, after winning the open class market lamb show Sunday afternoon.

But she was not quite so sure about the tradition that follows the annual winner of this particular competition.

"I have to pay for the ice cream," she announced with wide-eyed realization. Setting up ice cream for the host of fellow sheep competitors has become a post-show tradition at the fair among the families who return to the show arena year after year.

Cortney, the daughter of Tim and Beth Flory, Spring Grove, is just the latest sheep exhibitor in at least the third generation of extended Flory clan to participate in the York Fair. Her winning heavyweight champion ewe, "Sunflower," is a purebred from the flock of J & J Acres. The youngster is a first-grader at Spring Grove's Paradise Elementary School and has been helping with the family's sheep showing for at least three years.

Pulled into the ring as the reserve champion open class market lamb was Melissa Trostle, Red Lion, a member of the Ronald Trostle family and another long-time York Fair shepherding competitor. Her crossbred entry earlier won the light heavyweight division.

"These lambs are good enough to compete anywhere," judge John Conaway praised the five weight class champions and reserves pulled into the ring for his final overall champion selections in the open market lamb competition.

York Fair Junior Steer Honors Go To Tammi Grubb

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — Tammi Grubb claimed double honors in the York Fair's junior division steer shows, winning the championships in both the market steer and the prospect steer categories.

In her final year as a 4-H exhibitor, the 19-year-old Hanover beef breeder and showman topped the competitive junior market steer show with a handsome Angus x Maine-Anjou crossbred. Despite his being somewhat ill-at-ease and restless in the showing. "Harley" was ultimately steered to the top of the competition by the veteran junior exhibitor.

Grubb duplicated the top-spot win with a younger steer, "Logan," to take champion honors in the prospect class, a special category for steers being groomed for Farm Show competition in January. Though ineligible for junior classes after this show season, the Hanover young woman, who is employed at Bauman's Purina Feeds dealership, plans to continue showing and custom beef fitting.

In the reserve champion market steer spot was Hope Long, 15, Airville, exhibiting her crossbred steer "Colby." Colby was the steer winner earlier at the Mason-Dixon fair and topped his class at the spring steer show.

Reserve champion in the prospect steer class was Kim Long, Airville, with the lightweight division winner.

Thanks and congratulations to T & A Farms, Needmore, Fulton Co., PA on the recent construction of their 62 x 19 expandable Slurrystore® System!

When Tom and Allen Morton of T & A Farms were planning a waste storage system, they decided on a Slurrystore System from Penn Jersey. The flexibility of the system allowed them to construct the tank on the other side of a state road from the dairy barn, to allow room for future expansion of the barn. They were also pleased with the pumping and center agitation systems available.

Whispering Winds Farm Turns Hillborns' Dream Into Reality

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

PIPERSVILLE (Bucks Co.) - "This is our dream come true. We are so happy and blessed," Barry Hillborn said as his eyes swept across the terrain of Whispering Winds Farm.

Two new barns and a house have been erected and productive fields nursed from land previously said to be overrun with every weed known to Bucks County.

Acres of tripost and rail fence line the pasture used for grazing horses. The fairly level acreage is edged with trees, ravines, and deep valleys on all four sides. Behind the tree line are acres of neighboring farms. It's an idyllic spot preserved for farms in rapid developing Bucks County.

Hillborn and his wife Jeannette waited more than 18 years for their dream to farm to become reality.

Raised on a dairy farm, Barry had continued to farm with his dad after high school. But his dad died, and his mother had to sell the family farm because of heavy taxes and expenses.

Hillborn was devastated. Determined that he would not lose sight of his goal to farm again, his motto became: "A dream without a plan is just a dream, but a dream with a plan becomes reality."

He kept his dream alive by continuing to subscribe to agriculture newspapers and magazines to keep abreast of the newest farming techniques. He remained a member of Pennsylvania Farm Bureau.

Because his wife's job required her to live within Philadelphia city limits, the Hillborns settled in the city, where he maintained a garden. Daughter Connie said, "We ate eggplants four seasons because he grew so many."

During his "city" years, Hillborn wrote a letter printed in this paper in 1982. In it, he encouraged young people to use the opportunities they have to farm before they regret it. He also voiced his hope to someday return to the farm life he loves so much.

Hillborn said that in his favor was a wife who shared his dream. "She was a city girl. At first I had reservations about her, but she surprised me," Hillborn admits of her tenacity to hang onto the dream for so many years.

Hillborn, now 55 years, said, "My friends say, 'This is the time you should downscale, not take on such a big venture.' I've heard it a thousand times, 'you can't go into farming in this day and age.' But it's the love of my life. Somehow we will make it work."

Jeannette is every bit as enthusiastic as her husband. "Age doesn't matter, if it's what you love," she said.

They purchased the property two years ago. They contracted with Agway to have the shell of a barn and machine shed erected. Hillborn built eight horse stalls.

Because the acreage had laid dormant for more than 30 years, a heavy growth of multiflora infested the hard, shaley ground. When the county extension agent came out, he shook his head and said, "I wish I could hold classes here. You have every weed known in the county growing here."

After several mowings, spraying, and 40 tons of lime and fertilizer applications, the Hillborns were looking forward to a good hay crop last year. They worked 24 hours straight to put in the seed in late May, then not a drop of rain fell for months.

"It was a rough start, but I didn't lose heart," Hillborn said. "We figured it couldn't stay dry forever and it didn't."

This year the rains have yielded hay that proves the soil is being revitalized. "The first cutting, we got 1,700 bales," Hillborn said. They'll be keeping it to feed the four horses they have.

"After the drought last year, I think it's a good idea to keep a reserve," he said.

Hillborn did not go into farming blindly. In his favor, he can fix anything, according to his daughter.

He restored two dilapidated Farmall tractors and a 1950's hay baler he purchased for $50.

Jeannette and Connie laugh joyously whenever they see Hillborn in the fields. Connie said, "When you see him driving tractor, even from a distance, you can tell he's happy."

He's like a kid opening up Christmas gifts. Every day is like a new present.

At this point the Hillborns raise horses and hay, but Hillborn's dream includes adding a few cows and a flock of chickens.

Both Hillborn and his wife of 21 years continue to work full-time, off-the-farm jobs. Hillborn works as a campus police for a nearby college. Since Hillborn was 16 years of age, he has volunteered as a fire police at local, county, and state levels.

Jeannette is a mortgage banker. A married son and two grandchildren live in Virginia.

Connie, who is single, lives in New Jersey but returns to the farm whenever possible to drive tractor, throw bales, ride horse, and help wherever needed.

"Tell young people that if they want to farm, it's not impossible. Follow your heart and dreams, and never let it go."

"Never lose sight of your dream," Barry and Jeannette Hillborn and daughter Connie tell others. For 17 years, the Hillborns dreamed of owning their own farm. Hard work and setbacks did not dim the dream they shared together. Whispering Winds Farm has been erected on land that lay dormant for more than 30 years and overrun by weeds.

Hillborn restored this Farmall H with lots of parts, labor, and love. When his wife and daughter see him working in the fields, they often pause, laugh, and remark, "Look at him. You can tell even from a distance, he's so happy."

Barry Hillborn's letter to the editor appeared 18 years ago in February 13, 1982

As a former farmer of Bucks County who is still a member of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association, and who still loves all types of farming but to this day has had very little success at being able to get back to the life that I love so much, I would like to say that I am so glad for the paper that you people put out It keeps me in such close touch with all the things that I love and that make this world a better place to live

I also would like to add that any young person who has a chance to get into farming but who doesn't will, in time, be very sorry for not doing so, when they had a chance I think farmers are a very great and special breed of people and there are not too many of them left

Maybe someday I will be able to get back to the farm life that I love so much That is, if the good Lord is willing and with a lot of luck In the mean time, I hope that all of you at Lancaster Farming will keep up the good work and continue to publish for years to come Thank you for your paper.

"We took a Chance on Chance," Jeannette said of the horse purchased from an Amish farmer. Chance is now her favorite riding horse.

Daughter Connie returns to the farm as often as possible to ride her horse and help wherever needed on the farm.

Different Peppers Have Proud Pedigrees

Black pepper is not just the ground-up dried seeds of bell peppers that grow in your garden.

Actually, black pepper the spice comes from a totally different plant than pepper the vegetable. Black pepper starts out as tiny red berries of a tropical vine, grown mostly in Indonesia and other parts of the East Indies.

The berries grow in clusters, like grapes, not in bell — or pod-shaped crispy, edible shells. The berries are picked just before reaching full maturity. Then they're dried, resulting in black peppercorns that are sold whole or ground-up.

White pepper is made from the same berries, but the black outer hull is removed. Inside, the pepper has a whitish core. Its flavor is a bit different than regular black pepper.

The other kind of pepper, the vegetable, is produced by plants in the large nightshade family, which includes 2,400 species, such as potatoes, tomatoes, eggplant and tobacco.

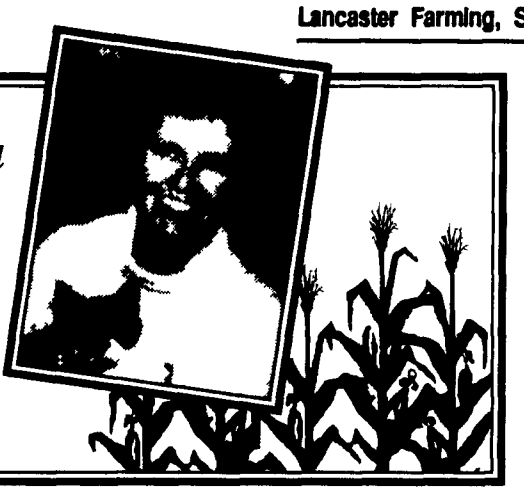
Unlike the spice, these peppers are native to Mexico and Central America. In fact, peppers were a staple food for the Inca in Peru.

Mild bell peppers are a great way to help you get your "five a day" of fruits and vegetables. They're low in calories — one small green pepper, about a half-cup chopped, has only about 20 calories. And it also contains nearly 1.5 grams of fiber — between five percent and 10 percent of the fiber you should get in a day. Bell peppers also are an excellent source of vitamin C, and red, orange and yellow peppers contain some vitamin A, too.

Hot peppers, such as jalapeno, poblano or serrano, are similarly low in calories, but they're not usually eaten in amounts large enough to count as a vegetable. When working with hot peppers, be sure to wear plastic gloves or cover your hands with plastic bags to prevent your fingertips from coming into contact with oils from the pepper that can burn your eyes, lips and skin. Even with that protection, wash your hands thoroughly before touching your eyes or face after working with hot peppers.

On Being a Farm Wife (and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp



Every country fair should have a rock festival.

No, no, no. Not one of those ear-damaging, strobe light, electronic, unruly, free-for-alls which pass for a modern day "music" concert. And calling that cacophony "music" may or may not be considered being overly kind, depending on your personal opinion.

The kind of rock festival to which I refer is one hosted this week at a Canadian country fair. And it was conceived and carried out by farm women.

This Canadian farm women's rock festival was a much quieter one than, say, the Woodstock type. And it had a way-different thrust. Farm women attending the fair were asked to bring a rock to contribute toward the building of a monument honoring the efforts and contributions of farm women to the Canadian agriculture industry.

What a rock'in great idea.

Rocks are a natural part of farm life in this geographical part of the world, though our rocks are nowhere near the volume and density of those on farms closer to the mountains, or the flintstone ridges of say, nearby Franklin and Cumberland counties. But we still have our share of rocks, some turning up naturally, others relocated for various purposes. I took a quick inventory around here, pondering which of various rocks on the place would be suitable to donate to such a tribute to my sister farm women.

Premier Rock of the farm is Fred. But I'd hate to give up Fred.

Fred is a flintstone, a decades-long resident of our front porch. He's been part of our family since the kids were small, when one day The Farmer dragged him out of the field with a tractor, then deposited him on the porch. I realized what a prize he was while tripping over his bulk.

A pretty white color, Fred weighs...waaaay too much for me to lift. It's Fred's responsibility to keep the front door from blowing off its hinges during windy spells. And he's very good at it. In fact, he turned up on the porch after a particularly windy winter, when The Farmer tired of repairing the door when winds repeatedly whipped it past the "stop" zone.

Our Fred is one dependable door stop that never rots, breaks, or blows away. Sorry. Fred stays.

But we have numerous rocks in the garden from which to select. Or, more realistically, medium-sized stones.

Our garden, blessedly, does not have a lot of natural, large rocks, being fairly rich, loamy soil to which a lot of organic matter has been added. Protective mulch is used every year, including stretches of black plastic, cardboard and paper materials, with a weighting layer of grass clippings or straw put down to keep the paper stuff from blowing over the neighborhood. Strategically-placed stones hold the paper material in place until the clippings settle.

The mulch-weight stones are relocated each year, pitched to the side of the garden during late-winter clean off, then reassigned as the rows and mulch are laid out. We could easily spare one or two of the more symmetrical of those toward our Canadian farm sisters' rock monument.

We no longer plow anything, having switched years ago to strict, no-tillage cropping. Nevertheless, large rocks still manage to work their way up through the soil each year. So there are always a few piles of field stones, along the pasture edges or on deposit on a pile toward some future use as fill. Surely we could find a few select contributions there.

There are rocks outside the weaned-heifer pens, retrieved from inside hay bales. Rocks strategically placed to help fill the holes in the blacktop left by the daily departures of the milk truck lugging up the grade from the milkhouse. Rocks carefully packed into mudholes to level the field roads. Rocks kept handy to prop gates and block hay wagons and keep the squirrels from rooting in the geranium planters.

Come to think of it, we probably don't need to lug any rocks to another country for a monument to our farm sisters. We have more than enough to build one right here.

Maybe we could replicate this idea at one of our own local fairs.

I'll contribute the cornerstone.

Children and Farm Safety

Thousands of children are injured and hundreds of children die each year from hazards found on the farm. Annually, approximately eight percent of all Pennsylvania farm work injuries occur to youth aged 19 and younger. Some of these children are working on the farm when the injury occurs; others wander into trouble or are invited or attracted into hazardous areas.

According to Penn State farm safety expert Dennis Murphy, no toddler or preschooler should have work tasks on a farm. Early elementary school age children (ages 5-9) can water plants, feed small animals, collect eggs, or help with hand tools.

Youth ages 10 to 13 are potentially the most dangerous on the farm because at this age they are risk takers, easily distracted, and clumsy. Parents should not mistake a child's size for ability to do work. Appropriate farm tasks for 10 to 13-year-olds are hand raking and digging; limited power tool use only under supervision; lawn mowing with a push mower or garden tractor on flat surfaces and under supervision; and handling or assisting with animals.

The 13- to 16-year-old still needs adult supervision but may be ready for more adult jobs such as equipment operation and maintenance. Parents can gradually increase tasks as experienced is gained.

Farm work tasks appropriate for 13- to 16-year-olds include manual handling of feed and feeding animals. Fourteen and 15-year-olds can operate a tractor over 20 PTO horsepower and connect and disconnect parts to and from the tractor after completion of a 10-hour training program. They can also assist with operating (including stopping, adjusting, and feeding) the following equipment after completing a 10-hour training program: cornpicker, grain combine, hay mower, forage harvester, hay baler, potato digger, feed grinder, crop dryer, forage blower, auger conveyor, the unloading mechanism of a non-gravity-type self-unloading wagon or trailer, power post-hole digger, power post driver or non-walking rotary tiller.

Older teens of 16 to 18 years may be ready to work with tractors, self-propelled machinery, augers, elevators, and other farm equipment, but must earn this responsibility. They should be trained, educated, and supervised at regular intervals.

To help keep children safe on the farm consider the following:

- Provide a fenced-in play area close to the house and away from farming activities. Do not allow children to roam freely on a farm.
- Inspect the farm on a regular basis for hazards that could injure someone who wanders onto the farm. Correct hazards immediately.
- Only school-age children should do farm work (age appropriate tasks only). Supervise working children at all times.
- Never let a child ride on a piece of farm equipment as an extra rider.
- Never invite children into a livestock barn, grain bin, or area where farm equipment is repaired.
- Farm equipment looks fun to children. Be sure ladders and other equipment are out of sight and reach.
- Be sure equipment is turned off, hydraulics are lowered, and keys have been removed from unattended equipment.
- Be sure there are strong physical barriers such as locks and fences around ponds and pits.
- Chemicals should be locked up.

Register For Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Coronation

CLARION (Clarion Co.) — Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc.'s 44th annual Dairy Princess Pageant will be held on Saturday evening, September 23, at the Sheraton Inn Harrisburg. A milk punch reception will start at 5:30 p.m. followed by a banquet at 6:30 p.m. and the coronation at 8 p.m.

Thirty-five dairy princesses will compete for the title of Pennsylvania Dairy Princess now held by Lori Connelly of Centre County. The newly selected princess and two alternates will reign for a period of one year from September 2000 to September 2001. During that time, they will represent the dairy farmers of Pennsylvania speaking out for its number one agricultural industry and all dairy products.

The pageant, which will be held on the Saturday evening preceding the annual All-American Dairy Week, will end two full days of activities and interviews for the contestants. Four judges, all from out-of-state, will select a Pennsylvania dairy princess and two alternates from seven finalists.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Princess program is supported by Pennsylvania dairy farmers through their various advertising and promotion agencies: The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program/American Dairy Association Mid-East, American Dairy Association/Dairy Council — Middle Atlantic, American Dairy Association Dairy Council, Inc. and Allied Milk Producers with contributions from other dairy related organizations and individuals. Again this year, as the result of a grant from Sire Power, Inc. and several anonymous individuals, the awards to the winners will be $1,200 to the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and $600 to each of her two alternates.

In addition, two contestants will receive $100 awards for outstanding dairy presentations designed for school children and, two others will receive $100 each for the two best speeches designed for adult audiences. As in the past, there will also be two $50 awards for compiling scrapbooks, which chronicle their dairy princess activities to date. The contestants themselves will select the coveted "Miss Congeniality" award from among their own ranks.

For more than 40 years, the primary purpose of the Dairy Princess program in Pennsylvania is the promotion of the dairy industry and its products on the local grass roots level and furthering consumers understanding of the importance of agriculture to our state's economy. Incentive Awards will again be given to the counties whose last year's princess and her committee completed the incentive requirements.

In addition, an individual award of $300 will be given to the young woman who stood out as the outstanding dairy promoter during her county reign. This award, entitled the "Tina Shultz Memorial Award" is given in memory and honor of the outstanding young lady, who in May 1986 succumbed to cancer, during her reign as Huntingdon County Dairy Princess.

Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services announces that the Saturday morning presentation competition will be open to the public free of charge. It will run from 8 a.m. until noon in the Sheraton Ballroom. All interested persons are invited and urged to attend.

Tickets for the event are $20 per person and are available on a "first come" basis from Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc., 214 South Street, Box 640, Clarion, PA 16214. (814) 226-7470 or fax (814) 226-8698. All tickets must be paid in advance and will be held for pick-up at the door.

Consuming Thoughts

by

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.

Many people are worried about the amount of fat in the foods we serve children. How much is too much? How much is enough? Too much fat may lead to heart disease or some types of cancer. However, some fat is needed for a child's normal growth and development.

Children under the age of two years of age should not be eating low-fat foods. Infants need fat as part of a well-balanced diet to insure proper growth. The body gets energy from fat. It might be harmful to eliminate all fat from a child's diet. Choose foods, which cut down, not eliminate, fat.

Switching to low-fat foods: When feeding children over 2-years-old, it is not necessary to limit all high-fat foods at one time. Children can still eat small amounts of high-fat foods such as ice cream, cookies, potato chips, and French fries. Begin by changing one or two foods, and then slowly change other high fat foods to low-fat ones. Trying to change all foods at once may be difficult for the children and could cause eating problems.

Some changes you can make: choose lean meats, fish, poultry, lower fat cheeses, and dried beans as protein sources. Try combining small amounts of high-fat protein foods like ground beef or cheese with cooked dried beans. Try some of the following ideas:

- Serve small portions of meat.
- Broil, bake, or steam foods, rather than frying them.
- Trim the fat from meat and take the skin off poultry. Drain cooked ground beef before adding to other ingredients.

Read labels to make low-fat choices:

Choose More Often:
Lower fat cottage cheese
Water-packed tuna
Plain frozen vegetables
Evaporated skim milk
Reduced fat mayonnaise
Part skim mozzarella and Ricotta cheeses

Choose Less Often:
Whole milk cottage cheese
Oil-packed tuna
Vegetables frozen with butter sauce
Evaporated whole milk
Plain mayonnaise
Whole milk cheeses

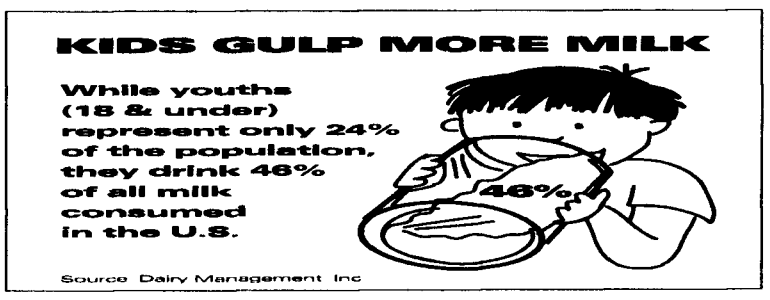
- Use non-fat or low-fat milk in cooking. Evaporated skim milk is a good substitute for light cream.
- Use yogurt as a substitute for mayonnaise or sour cream.
- Limit the use of butter, cream, whole milk, most cheese, hard margarine, shortening, lard, coconut, palm oil, and foods containing them.

Which milk is best?

- Infants (up to 12 months of age): breast milk or iron fortified infant formula.
- Children (12-24 months of age): whole milk.
- Children (2-years-old and above~ milk with reduced fat (two percent or one percent).

~Non-fat milk may be used for children over 3-years-old.

~Please note: before making any changes in your child's diet, please consult with your child's pediatrician.



KIDS GULP MORE MILK
While youths (18 & under) represent only 24% of the population, they drink 46% of all milk consumed in the U.S.

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

BELLEVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — "I believe it's a gift — the gift of language. Some people seem to have it, others don't," said Lee Thierwechter of Belleville. "I must have the gift. I grew up speaking the Pennsylvania Dutch dialect and had to learn English in school. I loved studying High German in high school and discovering the likenesses and differences between the two +(Pennsylvania German and High German+)."

Thierwechter uses his gift to teach a 10-week class on Pennsylvania German using the one-room country school concept. His upcoming class marks the start of his sixth year teaching the language. The students meet at the Maple Grove Mennonite Church near Belleville and come from all over Central Pennsylvania.

"I've had as many as 44 people including a Catholic priest from Doylesburg, teachers from Turbettville and Watsontown, a leather-clad motorcyclist from Mattawana, and a Mennonite from Aaronsburg. Some remember their grandparents talking in Pennsylvania German but never learned the language. The grandparents and parents used the language when they didn't want the children to know what they were saying!"

The class came about at the suggestion of many people, some undoubtedly interested in and curious about the various sects of Pennsylvania "Dutch" living in the area.

"Actually, Pennsylvania Dutch is a misnomer," Thierwechter explains. "People think of Holland, but the dialect originated in Germany. The German name for German is Deutsch. That's where Dutch comes from."

Students learn from a text and workbook compiled and created by Thierwechter. The book includes the German alphabet and other sounds pronounced in phonetic English, Pennsylvania German cognates, nouns, verbs, numbers, common terms, conversational phrases, stories, songs, poems, scriptural passages, Pennsylvania German proverbs, Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, and the Lord's Prayer. The class recites the Lord's Prayer in Pennsylvania German at the beginning of each session, a recitation that takes practice.

When reciting Pennsylvania German, A is pronounced awe, B is bay, C is tsay, and so forth. When learning English as a child,

Lee Thierwechter of Belleville takes a few moments to review his textbook A Pennsylvania German Text-Work Book, a study guide he wrote for the Pennsylvania German language classes he conducts.

Thierwechter ran home one day to tell his Pennsylvania German-speaking parents that their name is pronounced Thierwechter, not > Actually, Pennsylvania Dutch is a misnomer. People think of Holland, but the dialect originated in Germany. The German name for German is Deutsch. That's where Dutch comes from.

Sierwechter as in sear. The German language doesn't recognize the th sound. His name, originally spelled Thurwachter with umlauts or double dots above the u and a, means "gate keepers."

"I was born on a farm near Kimmerlings, Lebanon County, and moved to a 23-acre farm that the Zoar Evangelical Lutheran Church owned when I was three. My parents had the responsibilities of the farm, church, and cemetery. I can still remember Pastor Diehl saying when we walked to the church door on Sunday mornings, "Here come the gate keepers.' I remember old German hymnals in the back of the church. Because of my upbringing, "the Pennsilfaanish Deitch Mudderschprooch' became an ingrown part of me."

After high school, Thierwechter attended Lebanon Valley College and then Penn State and graduated with a degree in agricultural education. After marrying Neda Kreider of Palmyra, Thierwechter worked at the Milton Hershey School for two years. He then worked for the Eastern States Farmers' Exchange, which later became Agway.

After his mother died in 1981, Thierwechter spoke the dialect little until his transfer to Agway in Belleville where he discovered, to his delight, the Big Valley Amish and Mennonites.

"We would talk in German, but they'd say jokingly, "You're too German for us!"" What they meant was that Thierwechter's German was more High German, or more standardized, than the local dialect. He said he also came under suspicion for once being Amish and leaving the church, but a local farm wife whose family knew the Thierwechters from Lebanon County, removed that suspicion. Thierwechter's German heritage is rooted in the Lutheran and Reformed Church (UCC), which conducted services in German. Prior to his marriage, his father was Lutheran and his mother was Reformed (UCC).

In the late 1980s, Thierwechter was invited to a gathering of Pennsylvania German enthusiasts at Susquehanna University. Speakers included prominent Pennsylvania German individuals such as C. Richard Beam, Allen Musser, Earl C. Haag, Luke Brinker, Frederick S. Weiser, Ivan Glick, Howard Geisinger, John Hostetler, Larry Neff, and Noah Zimmerman.

This past June, Thierwechter was elected to the board of directors of the Pennsylvania German Society, headquartered in Kutztown. He writes a weekly column in Pennsylvania German for the "County Observer" newspaper and is corroborating on several Pennsylvania German-to-English dictionaries.

Anyone interested in learning "Pennsilfaanish Deitch Mudderschprooch" can attend Thierwechter's class, which begins Friday, September 8, from 7 until 9 at the Maple Grove Mennonite Church, Belleville, and will meet for 10 weeks. To register call Lee Thierwechter at (717) 935-2736.

Enjoy The Many Nationalities Of Rice

Rice is the single most important food in the world and is a staple that is healthy, easy to cook, and versatile as today's collection of recipes illustrate.

Although 90 percent of the rice consumed in the United States is grown in the U.S., Americans have adapted many of their recipes from other nationalities. Enjoy this world tour of rice recipes. Better yet, enjoy the taste of rice.

Nutrition and fashion are wrapped up in these Taco Rico Wraps.

More than 100,000 people are unable to eat foods from grains such as wheat, barley, rye, and oats; others may also react to millet and buckwheat. Many people need to eliminate those grains from their diets.

Since rice is a non-allergenic food, it is ideal for the gluten-free diet, and is suitable for most allergy diets. An added bonus is that rice is also fat, sodium and cholesterol free.

When wheat and wheat flour are not used in baking recipes, the final product tends to be coarser and denser unless some modifications are followed. The Rice Council has many recipes for those needing allergy diets.

For allergy-free recipes, write to USA Rice, P.O. Box 740121, Houston, TX 77274.

Featured Recipe

Although rice is a food staple, it certainly need not be served bland. Thousands of recipes reveal the versatility of cooking with rice.

Here is a novel idea for the popular wrap sandwich.

Save time by cooking batches of rice ahead of time, dividing into 1-2 cup servings and refrigerating or freezing. Cooked rice will keep for one week in the refrigerator and several months in the freezer. Use for salads, stir-frys, casseroles, desserts, and any rice recipe.

To reheat in the microwave, cover and cook 1 minute on high power for each cup of refrigerated rice or 2 minutes for frozen rice. If reheating on stove, add 2 tablespoons hot water or other liquid per cup of cooked rice and heat in a saucepan on range top 5 minutes. Stir occasionally and fluff with a fork.

TACO RICO WRAPS

1 pound lean ground turkey or beef
16-ounce jar chunky salsa
3 cups cooked rice
11-ounce can corn, drained
1 cup shredded Monterey Jack cheese
18 flour or corn tortillas, warmed

Brown turkey in large nonstick skillet over medium-high heat; drain fat and liquid, if necessary. Stir in salsa, rice, and corn. Cook over medium heat, covered, for 5 to 10 minutes or until no liquid remains. Spoon ⅓ cup mixture in each tortilla, top with 1 tablespoon cheese. Roll up; serve.

Makes 6 servings (3 tacos each).

When Bad Things Happen To Your Good Name

Identity Theft

It sounds like a nightmare — you wake up one morning and another person has taken your identity. They may be using your credit card to make purchases, your Social Security Number to get government benefits, or your credit history to take out a car loan in your name. How could this have happened? Could it have been prevented?

Learn the steps you can take to guard against identity theft with a new publication from the Federal Trade Commission. "ID Theft: When Bad Things Happen To Your Good Name," looks at how identity thieves get your personal information, how they use it, what you can do to protect yourself and what to do if you are a victim.

Find out how to "opt-out" of prescreened credit card offers and marketing lists. Learn which questions to ask when someone requests your Social Security Number and how to check information on file about you at the three major credit bureaus. If you are a victim, use the helpful chart to keep track of the actions you've taken to report identity theft.

To protect yourself against identity theft, manage your personal information carefully. Before you give out any information, ask how it will be used.

Put passwords on your credit, bank, and phone accounts so that only you have access to them. It's also wise to limit the amount of personal information you carry. Leave extra credit cards and your Social Security card at home in a safe place.

If you are a victim of identity theft, there are three basic actions you can take. First, contact each of the three major credit bureaus and have a "fraud alert" placed on your file. Next, contact your creditors for any accounts that have been tampered with or opened fraudulently. Finally, file a report with the local police and refer to "ID Theft: When Bad Things Happen To Your Good Name," to find state and federal offices that deal with ID theft. This publication cost 50 cents. To get your copy:

- Call toll-free 1-888-8-PUEBLO. That's 1-888-878-3256, weekdays, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. EDT and ask for Item 372G. This publication costs 50 cents. Have your credit card handy.

Generating media attention is the world's largest milkshake made with 4,270 gallons milk, 1,526 gallons ice cream, 67 gallons chocolate syrup, 67 gallons vanilla, and 70 gallons natural flavor. On Aug. 1, Comfort Diner and Parmalat USA teamed up with the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. to serve the milkshake to thousands of New Yorkers.

Milk Teams Up With Cycling League Championship

Cyclists race their way to the finish line in the Got Milk? American Team Cycling League Championships at the Lehigh Valley Velodrome in Trexlertown.

PHILADELPHIA — Milk was part of the winner's circle at the Got Milk? American Team Cycling League (ATC) championship held recently at the Lehigh Valley Velodrome in Trexlertown.

A field of 50 cyclists from across the country competed in the championship, which was sponsored by "got milk?" and the American Dairy Association/ Dairy Council Middle Atlantic (ADA/DC).

"We are pleased to be the first national sponsor of the ATC championship," said Patricia Purcell, director of advertising and retail for ADA/DC Middle Atlantic. "Cycling is a popular sport here in the Lehigh Valley region and across the country. It's a perfect venue for spotlighting the role milk plays as part of an athlete's training program."

That message was emphasized in the Velodrome's August 2000 souvenir program, which included a page dedicated to the ATC championship. Cycling enthusiasts were reminded that "a balanced diet, including at least three glasses of nutrient-dense milk, provides the fuel necessary for active bodies."

"Milk is a natural power drink," Purcell said. "It provides calcium and eight essential nutrients that can help put muscle into your workouts."

During the cycling championship, more than 2,800 fans cheered on their favorite team while participating in a number of "got milk?" events. All young fans received a "got milk?" book cover and had a chance to compete in a "milk and cookie toss" in the infield. The two winners, who pitched the most cookies into their bucket, were awarded a "Chocolate Milk" mountain bike.

In addition, 1,700 single-serve containers of chocolate milk from Wawa Dairies were served to fans before, during and after the races. "Go Go Go got milk?" banners were prominently displayed around the track, and numerous public address announcements highlighted milk's sponsorship of the race.

Representatives of the dairy industry — including dairy princesses and ADA/DC Middle Atlantic staff — participated in the awards ceremony at the end of the race. The big winner in the men's division was the home team, the Trexlertown Express, earning its second win in the ATC's three-year history.

ANSWER — A subscriber from Leesport wrote that she has a problem with sponge and chiffon cakes. Although the cakes bake well, she ends up cutting off one-inch from the bottom of the cake because it is a gummy consistency. Thanks to Dorothy Stoms, Deerfield, N.J., who writes that a heavy, sticky layer at bottom of sponge and chiffon cakes can be caused by the following:

- Underbeaten egg yolks
- Insufficient mixing of egg yolks with other ingredients
- An important rule to follow is to beat egg yolks until they're lemon colored and thick as whipped cream, then add sugar gradually.

For sponge cake, beat until it is very light and foamy.

Angel food cakes are leavened only with air; whether or not you get a light tender cake, depends on how much you beat your egg white, the lightness with which you fold in the sugar and flour mixture, and the temperature at which the cake is baked. Note: Beat until egg whites are stiff enough to hold up in soft peaks, but are still moist and glossy. Also remember to use very fine granulated sugar as it dissolves faster and cake has a finer texture.

ANSWER — A reader wanted a recipe to make elderberry wine from fresh elderberries. Thanks to Dorothy Stoms, Deerfield, N.J., for sending a recipe from a 1944 cookbook.

Elderberry Wine

Put only enough water with the berries to keep them from burning and cook a few minutes, just long enough to scald thoroughly.

Strain through a cheesecloth, add 8 cups sugar to 10 cups berry juice. Set in cool place to ferment and skim daily until clear. When bubbles cease to rise to top of liquid, it is ready to bottle.

Use only granulated sugar and you will have some of the richest flavored wine you ever tasted.

Yeast is apt to sour the wine and it is a mistake to hurry the fermenting process. The addition of other liquor spoils the fine natural flavor of the elderberries.

ANSWER — Lynda Bell, Lincoln University, requested a recipe for horseradish jelly. Thanks to Marlene Ochs, Reading, for sending a recipe.

Horseradish Jelly

2 cups sugar
1 cup white vinegar
¾ cups horseradish
½ bottle liquid pectin

Boil together sugar and vinegar for three minutes. Stir in horseradish and bring to a boil. Remove from heat and skim. Pour into hot sterilized jars. Seal with two-piece lids and process 5 minutes in boiling water bath, making sure jar tops are covered with one-inch of water. Makes three 6-ounce jars.

ANSWER — Bob Snyder wanted recipes for hot rice. Thanks to Elizabeth Young, Peach Bottom, for sending a recipe. Also check out the Home On The Range page for more rice recipes.

Seafood Rice Casserole

1 can cream of celery or mushroom soup
1¼ cups milk
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ teaspoon salt
1⅓ cups minute rice
½ pound seafood OR 1 can tuna
1 pint frozen peas, thawed
Cheese slices

Mix soup, milk, and salt in saucepan. Bring to a boil over medium heat. Pour half into greased 1½ quart casserole. In layers, add rice, tuna, peas. Add remaining soup mixture. Top with cheese slices. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake at 375 degrees for 20 minutes.

ANSWER — A reader wanted recipes for hot pepper jam and for sweet pepper jam that tastes similar to that made by Kitchen Kettle. Thanks to Marlene Ochs, Reading, for sending this recipe.

Hot Pepper Jelly

6½ cups granulated sugar
1½ cups apple cider vinegar
¾ cups ground sweet peppers
¼ cups ground hot peppers
1 bottle liquid pectin

Mix together and bring all ingredients to a rolling boil except the liquid pectin. Let mixture stand 5 minutes. Add liquid pectin and stir well. Pour into prepared jelly jars.

Here is another version for hot pepper jam from Dorothy Stoms, Deerfield, N.J. She writes for sweet pepper jam, use the same recipe but use all sweet peppers.

Hot Pepper Jam

½ cup chopped hot peppers
1½ cups chopped sweet peppers
6½ cups sugar
1½ cups vinegar
1 box Certo (both envelopes)

Boil together first four ingredients for three minutes, add both envelopes pectin, boil one minute. Let sit five minutes and skim. Pour into jars.

ANSWER — Don Love wanted a recipe to make homemade marshmallow creme. Thanks to a reader from Finger Lakes, N.Y., for sending this recipe.

Marshmallow Creme

2 cups sugar
1 cup water
2½ cups light corn syrup
½ cup light corn syrup (lukewarm)
1 cup egg whites
1 teaspoon vanilla

Boil first three ingredients to soft ball stage (250 degrees). Cool 5 minutes. Meanwhile, place ½ cup lukewarm corn syrup in mixing bowl. Add one cup egg whites. Beat slowly until blended, then beat hard until light and fluffy. Beat cooled syrup in a fine stream into egg whites. When well mixed, add vanilla. Beat hard 3 minutes. Store in jars, but don't cover until completely cooled.

If marshmallow creme seems too soft after it is completely cooled, cook first three ingredients a little longer next time. If it seems too hard, don't cook quite as long.

Here are some flavored versions of marshmallow cream that Dorothy Stoms, Deerfield, N.J., thought our readers would enjoy.

Chocolate Marshmallow Cream

Soften:
1 envelope unflavored gelatin in
¼ cup milk
Heat together in saucepan:
2 cups milk
½ cup sugar
1 square unsweetened chocolate

Beat with rotary beater. Remove from heat and beat in gelatin. Beat until smooth. Chill until mixture begins to set. Stir in:
¼ pound marshmallows (11-16) cut-up
¼ cup ground nuts, if desired
Fold in:
2 egg whites, beaten stiff
1 cup whipping cream, whipped stiff

Chill four hours. Serve in sherbet glasses. Serves 8.

Orange Marshmallow Cream

Heat together in saucepan over low heat:
1 cup orange juice
¼ pound (11-16) marshmallows, cut up

Stir until marshmallows are dissolved. Remove from heat. Cool. When partially set, fold in:
½ cup whipping cream, whipped stiff

Chill 4 hours. Serve in sherbet glasses. Garnish with fresh fruit or berries. 4 servings.

Pineapple Marshmallo Cream

Follow recipe for Orange Marshmallow Cream except, in place of orange juice, use 1 cup crushed pineapple with ½ tablespoon lemon juice. Serves 4.

Somerset Fair Livestock Sale

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — On Saturday, Aug. 26, some 330 market animals in the Somerset County Fair Junior Livestock Sale brought a total of $173,039 when the columns were tallied for the 40 steers, 66 lambs and 224 swine that passed through the sale ring.

You couldn't have asked for a better weather day for the 100th fair's annual sale, which found Walker's Farm Service, Somerset, buyer of the grand champion steer, leading the charge as premier buyer and Lincoln Supply and Equipment, Somerset following close behind, during six hours of non-stop selling.

The grand champion steer brought a hefty $4.50 per pound to rack up a price tag of $5,670 for 14-year-old Shawn Troutman of Wellersburg. After years of all-out effort, Troutman's steer this time hit the jackpot, taking honors, also as county-bred champion and club calf sale champion.

Dan Miller's reserve champion steer sold for $2,710 or $2 per pound to Hoss's Steak and Sea House in Somerset. Miller is from Meyersdale.

Kayla Wedge of Meyersdale had the reserve champion County Bred steer which sold for $1.35 per pound or $1,856.25 while Heidi Svonavec's champion senior showman steer sold for $1.65 or $2,062.50. In all, the per pound average for steers was $1.50.

Brooke Ritchey's grand champion lamb brought $750 or $6 per pound from W.J. Brant of Rockwood. Ritchey's address is Hyndman, but she lives near Wellersburg.

The reserve champion lamb owned by Jessica Darr, Somerset, sold for $7 per pound to Shade Landfill, Inc. for a total of $812. The home grown lamb owned by Gabriel Svonavec also went for $7 per pound and came out to $885 from Yachere Feed, Inc. Rockwood.

The champion County-Born lamb owned by Nicole Shultz of Rockwood, sold for $5.50 per pound, or $676.50.

At $2.03 per pound, lambs had the highest average of the three species auctioned off.

Jeremy Hay, Rockwood, saw LaRue Meat Processing run the bids to $3.75 for his grand champion swine which totaled $941.25.

The reserve champion swine of Lucas Svonavec, also from Rockwood, was purchased by Laurel Bank at $5 per pound or $1,255.

Jesse Brant's champion county born swine went for $2 or $472, while the champion home grown swine of Megan Korns brought $2.25 per pound or $589.50.

The overall average for swine was $1.56 per pound.

The resale of some 46 animals generated $6,496.30 for the Somerset County 4-H/FFA Scholarship Fund. Time was allotted between selling the steers and lambs to aware the 2000 scholarships. The recipients were Dara Arnold, April Coberly, Amanda Darr, Rian Smith, Jessica Lynch, Bill Sines, Dan Miller, Jesse Brant, Sarah Thompson, Lucas Svonavec and Mindi Countryman.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

There are so many things to do these days that I don't know where to start. Our old apple tree dropped bushels of small fruit and I made a lot of applesauce.

When my mother sat and worked on small apples, we asked her not to bother with the small fruit. Now I also sit and prepare small apples for sauce as I simply do not like to see things being wasted.

But, some tomatoes will have to stay in the garden for the animals to eat as I have an ample supply already canned. This year we had two kind of pears to preserve. Many of them are being canned in pint jars instead of quarts. I don't especially like leftovers at a meal, but it is surprising how things can be combined to make a new dish.

There are toys on the sofa and books on the floor as the grandchildren were here. They listened to the news with us and then we took a walk. Their little bright eyes saw cucumbers that I missed in the garden and so I canned a few more pint. Now there are 68 jars on the shelf. As they are always hungry, I'd made shortcake with peaches and I gave them each a dish of dessert. Next they played with small crackers and finally ate them — except for the crumbs on the floor.

They even persuaded me to play a card game with them. I'm not very good at sitting down to play as I think of too many things that should be done. But, I can see that it does teach them numbers and me patience.

All three children get on the school bus in the morning. They play soccer and football after school and I am always anxious about their safety. Most of our grandchildren are involved in sports and our own children are coaches for teams. Many young people do not have enough work at home to keep them busy, but ours always did. Even so, they belonged to many clubs.

Venison Cooking Competition Raises Standard

INDIANA (Indiana Co.) — The judges at this year's Panache d'Or Venison Cooking Competition were tough — demanding what seemed perfection from the nine competing chefs. As all gathered for evaluation in the chef's kitchen at the Indiana University of Pennsylvania, critique of plates was taken constructively, for, as one judge stated, "That which doesn't kill you, will only make you stronger."

The competition, hosted August 5 by the Cervid Livestock Foundation of the North American Deer Farmers Association, was particularly challenging this year for a reason: the American Culinary Federation (ACF) sanctioned it, giving it new status in the culinary world and raising the standard of performance. The first year of ACF sanctioned competition was hosted by its Groundhog Chapter in Indiana.

The goal of the annual competition is to promote North American farm-raised venison to chefs and the public alike.

Three certified ACF judges, critiqued the plates according to ACF's contemporary competition rules. Judging was based on organization, cooking skills, and culinary techniques, and taste. The results were as follows: Ray Wesolowski, Pittsburgh, Gold Medal and Grand Prize Winner; Michael Herr, Indiana, Gold Medal; Norm Hart, Pittsburgh, Silver Medal; James Woltman, Hershey, Bronze Medal; Richard Horn, Pittsburgh, Culinary Diploma; Scott San Filippo, Montpelier, VT, Certificate of Participation; Scott Barrett, Grampian, Certificate of Participation; Chris Hill, Barre, VT, Certificate of Participation; and Tom Spencer, Sayre, Certificate of Participation.

Susquehanna County Cow To Travel The Country

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

MONTROSE (Susquehanna Co.) — A cow has "escaped" from Susquehanna County and is en route on a journey around the country.

Along the way, the black-and-white bovine, named "Cassidy," is expected to visit almost every state in the union, making friends along the way, and generating a host of information for a group of students at the Lathrope Street Elementary School.

Cassidy is not your ordinary dairy cow. She's a large "stuffed" bovine and her journey is the brainchild of the Lathrope Street Elementary School's media specialist and dairy farmer, Natalie Hawley.

A few years ago, Natalie Hawley shipped off a teddy bear — alias Ted E. Read — whose journey ultimately circled through England, Alaska, Japan, Thailand, Australia and several cities in the United States. With the assistance of his hosts, the well-traveled teddy sent fascinating tales and memorabilia of his stops to help Mrs. Hawley's students learn about the geography of various areas and how people live around the world.

"Why not a cow?" figured the librarian, whose husband, Louis, and family operate a 75-head, grazing-based dairy farm near Montrose.

Cassidy's assignment for her travels is to keep a journal of who and where she visits and interesting things she does and discovers in her stops. Since writing is not naturally a talent for most cows, Cassidy will be depending on her hosts to help with her tales about her travels.

As a base list of host families for the pedigreed and eartagged bovine, Natalie Hawley tapped many of the directors and their spouses of the board of Dairy Farmers of America, on which Lou Hawley serves, as well as other dairy family contacts around the country.

Cassidy made her traveling debut at a recent dairy meeting in Lake Tahoe, Nevada. From there, she accompanied northern California dairy farmer Harvey Moranda home to his Jersey dairy herd and olive grove for her first farm visit as she crisscrosses the country.

Students at the school, under Natalie Hawley's lead, will track Cassidy's travels and the adventures she has through notes and postcards her farm hosts will send back. The traveling-cow geography teacher and ambassador is expected to be on the road for about a year before making the trip back to the Susquehanna County elementary school.

Hosts are encouraged to take Cassidy to farm and non-farm places and events during her stay with them, any activity or location they think the Lathrope School students might enjoy learning about. They may also send the stuffed bovine ambassador with family or friends to interesting activities, perhaps even along with a local dairy princess on promotional appearances. The school will underwrite the cost of the postage for shipping Cassidy along to another state, which hosts are encouraged to do after she has been in their care for a week.

"Our goal is to learn as much about each state as possible from local people, the size of the state, the terrain, the weather. Each part of the country is unique, whether it be a famous city or a small hamlet, and we want to hear about it from local people," explains Natalie Hawley, Cassidy's "mom."

The Hawley family has a tradition of pursuing such interesting angles to their careers. Their dairy operation, which is expanding to about 100 cows, is a seasonal-milking one, with calving starting early in March and the whole herd dried off by late December. They also raise extra dairy heifers and maintain a herd of 35 beef cows.

About 600 acres included in the operation are fenced in numerous pastures to accommodate the total more than 350 head of cows and young stock. Pastures are planted to mostly grass and some clover, plus occasional innovations such as cropping turnips for the grazing herd.

Hawleys' herd is milked in a double-ten, swing over parlor they constructed themselves four years ago, a simple and efficient facility which holds current milking times to little more than an hour.

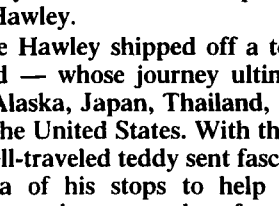
With their extensive experience in high-tensile fence construction, the Hawleys also do custom fencing for other landowners, as well as operate a custom, wrapped-round-bale business during summer months.

During his senior year in high school, Hawley milked his then-40-head herd before and after daily classes. He and Natalie met through 4-H and are the parents of three grown sons, two of them working full-time with the family farming operation. Ben, 25, has a special interest in the beef herd, while Nick tends a herd of goats in addition to the farm's other diverse enterprises. Mike, 23, works for Proctor and Gamble, and shepherds a flock of sheep along with lending a hand part-time with farm chores.

The Hawleys, along with the student body at the Lathrope Street school, are eager to hear of the adventures of the cow "escapee." After her extensive journeys around the country, the traveling Cassidy is expected to return for her retirement at the school and the Hawley family farm.

Natalie Hawley, dairy farmer and media specialist, holds Cassidy the cow who is traveling the country.

Eight-Legged Ocean Creature



No It's not something from a horror movie It's an octopus and it really does have eight legs that are lined with suckers Check out some facts about these ocean creatures

The octopus

- Uses the suckers on its arms to move on the ocean floor and to capture prey It can have as many as 240 suction cups
- Moves by jet propulsion, which means it sucks water in then pushes it out the other end
- Has a hard beak like a parrot s The beak is used to kill and tear flesh from prey
- Lives alone on the sea floor in a den
- Ranges in size from less than half an inch to more than 16 feet long The biggest is the Giant Pacific Octopus which can end up weighing almost 600 pounds
- Has blue blood
- Uses poison to kill prey The poison is pretty weak in most types of octopus and cannot harm humans However the Blue Ringed Octopus from Australia has enough poison to paralyze and kill a human
- Protects itself by changing colors to blend in with its surroundings
- Sends out a cloud of purple-black ink to confuse its enemies

There are about 200 known species of the octopus around the world The larger ones are usually found in colder water

The Drawing Toy

This year, the popular Etch A Sketch® will be 40 years old The first Etch A Sketch toys were made July 12, 1960, but the work on them started years before that

Arthur Granjean invented the L'Ecran Magique in the 1950s in his garage Granjean took the toy to the 1959 International Toy Fair in Germany And even though the Ohio Art Company representatives saw the toy there, they weren't interested in it They did decide to take a chance on making the toy after they saw it a second time

After renaming and making the toy, the company ran TV ads for the Etch A Sketch The Etch A Sketch became so popular, the company decided to keep making them until noon Christmas Eve 1960

But the Ohio Art Company has not stopped making the Etch A Sketch, and very little has changed in the drawing toy The left and right knobs on the frame control the movement of the drawing line The other side of the screen is coated with aluminum powder and plastic beads As the knobs are moved, the screen is actually scraped, leaving the line you see

Wayne County Junior Livestock Sale Has Heart

The grand champion market lamb was raised by Landen Grossman and purchased by Honesdale National Bank.

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — In the largest livestock sale ever conducted here at the close of the Wayne County Fair, 4-H'ers were wholeheartedly supported by area businesses, parents, and friends, who purchased 353 animals.

Saturday, Aug. 12, at 11 a.m., $190,992.23 worth of market hogs, steers, and lambs were bid at auction. Some animals were resold to benefit various individuals and organizations.

Repeating as volume buyer for the fifth year in a row, Waymart Milling purchased five steers and six hogs from 4-H youth. In addition, strong support was demonstrated by Kent Brown of Highlights for Children, who sat for more than seven hours bidding on animals for businesses and individuals whose bids he personally solicited and carried to the sale.

The sale began with a moment of silence observed for Tom Theide, recently deceased livestock buyer, whose support of the sale in its early years was sincerely appreciated. Following this tribute, three scholarships were awarded to outstanding participants of the livestock program who will all enter Penn State University, at various campuses, for the fall term. Recipients of scholarships were Jessica Worobey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Worobey, Preston Park; Daryl Burleigh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Burleigh, Pleasant Mount; and Darryl Marshall, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Marshall, Honesdale.

Also receiving thanks from 4-H members, the sale committee, and all in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sheruda of Mike's Heavy Equipment, Clarks Summit, and John Gentile of RLE Enterprises of Moscow, who jointly purchased a new scale for weigh in at the hog barn.

The first animal offered for sale was the 252-pound grand champion Hampshire crossbred gilt, bred and raised by Greg Diehl of Damascus. This animal was purchased by Marshall Machinery for $10 per pound.

The reserve grand champion market hog was raised by Jessica Worobey, Preston Park. Dr. Henry and Jean Nebzydoski purchased this champion for $4 per pound.

Landen Grossman, Honesdale, sold his grand champion Suffolk crossbred lamb to The Honesdale National Bank for $10.75 per pound.

The reserve grand champion market lamb was raised by Hesten Grossman of Honesdale. The Wayne Bank successfully bid this champion to $7.50 per pound.

Grand champion market steer was raised by Matthew Hauenstein and purchased by Waymart Milling Company, with Taylor Thorpe in photo.

Matthew Hauenstein's 1,270-pound grand champion Black Angus market steer was bought by Waymart Milling Company for $2.75 per pound.

The 1,350-pound reserve grand champion Maine-Anjou market steer was raised by Darryl Marshall of Honesdale. The successful bidder for this animal was Atty. John Martin who paid $1.75 per pound.

Thirty animals were resold to benefit the Livestock Scholarship Fund.

Baby Kaitlyn Hentschel's medical fund benefited from resales donated by Mike Sheruda's Heavy Equipment, Community Bank and Trust, Andy Keating Trucking, Waymart Milling, Jimmie Ann Chyle, Windfall Farms Dairy, Joseph Kubat, and William Grunski.

The Pleasant Mount Go-Getters 4-H Club received the proceeds from two resales donated back by Mike's Heavy Equipment, Clarks Summit. The Wayne County Agricultural Society, Habitat for Humanity, and the American Cancer Society benefited from resales donated by Honesdale National Bank, John and Sue Keyes, and Dick Palmer and Sons Truck Service.

Volunteer auctioneers for the day were Wayne Weaver, Dan Naylor, Tom Randt, John Regan, and Mel Manasse.

Franklin Fall Farm Fun Fest Features Farming

Alexa Stoner and Carolyn Moyer team up at the Mid-Atlantic Dairy Council exhibit to help students bone up on the importance of calcium to their health. Along with dairy fact sheets, students were provided with recipes to give them ideas to make and eat dairy products.

MERCERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — If you think that saying "Franklin Fall Farm Fun Fest" is challenging, try channeling the energy of more than 1,600 fourth grade students on a field trip to a local dairy farm.

Held this year at Stoner's Hijos Farm in Mercersburg, the event changes locations each year. Sponsored by the Franklin County Farm Bureau, the three-day educational event allows students to experience firsthand a working farm as they tour the grounds and rotate through 18 interactive exhibits stationed around the farm.

A fast-moving schedule of seven minutes at each station kept the students moving to all areas of the farm such as the milking parlor, the dry cow/ hospital barn, milk tank room, feed storage, and farm machinery display.

The 25-minute wagon tour included stops to talk about conservation practices, observe crops, see the Slurrystore and check out the freestall barn. A bale maze, petting zoo, and free ice cream were also highlights of the day.

Growing Participation

According to promotion and education committee member and former agriculture teacher Gerald Reichard, Waynesboro, this year marks the 10th fall fest. The first six years, said Reichard, were a Saturday event open to the general public. Later the event was changed to include the field trip day for fourth graders.

Seven school districts now send approximately 65 classrooms to participate in the event. The students tour the farm two days before the farm is opened to the public on Saturday. Traditionally 1,200 to 2,000 people attend the event over the weekend.

In addition to the host dairy farm, a bus tour is sometimes an option for guests to tour a poultry, buffalo, or horse farm, fish hatchery, or orchard.

Because of increased school participation each year, numbers have increased dramatically.

"We have had a tremendous amount of cooperation from the school districts, FFA members serving as tour guides, presenters, and sponsors," said Reichard. Approximately 60-75 people serve as either presenters or event organizers.

Promotion and education committee members Haydee Middour, Waynesboro, and Margie Meyers, St. Thomas, monitored the time for the seven-minute rotations throughout the day.

"Everybody (school districts) has been enthusiastic about the event, so it's been expanding," said Middour.

According to Middour, the event is held in different parts of the county each year to expose more people to agriculture.

Valuable Supplement To School Curriculum

The day provides children with valuable exposure to something they have little or no experience with, according to Chambersburg teacher Jerry Barrick.

"None of these kids live on a farm, and none of them know a things about a farm, or even have relatives on a farm," said Barrick. "It will be a learning experience."

The petting zoo and calves were favorite activities of Barrick's students. "Getting the chance to put milkers on a cow was also a big thrill," said Barrick.

Tim Brookens, also a fourth-grade teacher at Chambersburg, agreed that students have limited experience with agriculture. "Even in our rural area, there's not a lot of kids that know anything about farming," said Brookens.

According to fourth grade teacher Ms. Shearer from Shalom Christian Academy, students at the school spend four weeks during social studies class learning about and comparing farming regions of the U.S.

"It's a great introduction for upcoming studies in the school year. Fewer of our children coming in are farmers, so this is a good way to help kids understand how it operates, and what is involved," said Ms. Shearer.

"We do a unit on Pennsylvania which will get into Pennsylvania agriculture," said Chambersburg teacher Jodi Feltman. In her class the students learn about the products grown in Pennsylvania and compare these products with other commodities grown in the U.S.

The Stations

In the freestall barn, Joe Middour described the comfortable living conditions of farm's 500 cows. He pointed out the fresh feed and water, the rubber mats, the scraped alleys and ventilation systems of the barn.

Philip Wagner, Franklin County extension agent, describes the replacement role of the farm's "teenage cows" at the heifer barn. Wagner described how the heifer pens are sorted by weight. To answer the students' question of whether or not the ear tags hurt, Wagner compared the ear tags to ear piercing.

Jamie Stoner, wife of farm co-owner Todd Stoner, introduces students to the younger members of the dairy herd. Jamie helps to feed the 50 calves mornings at Hijos Hill.

A at the farm's Slurrystore a representative from the Conservation District described the problems of algae, bacteria, and excessive nutrients for the Bay and producer efforts to install manure management systems and storages to slow or stop nutrient runoff.

Extension agent Ann Bonson believes that educational days such as Franklin County's fall fest are valuable in teaching children the connection between food and where it comes from.

Bonson demonstrated to the students the different parts of a plant, and how they are edible, such a potatoes as roots. Bonson also showed the students groceries and asked about their ingredients to help the students relate groceries from the store to the farm."Most kids do not even know that chips are made of potatoes," said Bonson. One stu-

Mark Yarish, dairy specialist at Purina Mills, demonstrates to the fourth graders the ingredients of feed in a cow's rations. Students found it hard to believe a cow could eat almost double of an average fourth grader's weight, 100-110 pounds of feed per day. Yarish pointed out that since cows may also drink 40 gallons a day the farmers must take care of their local water system.

Steve Stoner, co-owner of Hijos Hill, describes the fine art of the mowing process. "All this equipment is like toys for big people," added Mark Stoner, also a co-owner of the host farm. "Useful toys."

As the students wrinkled their nose at the pungent, sweet smell of haylage, Ken Schoenberg, a dairy farmer from Lurgan Township, spoke about the farm's trench silos. Schoenberg pointed out the plastic and tires which shield the haylage from precipitation.

He also gave the students a short lesson on the symbiotic, or mutually beneficial, relationship between the farmer, the cow, and the land. Cows eat the haylage, explained Schoenberg, produce milk, and give manure as fertilizer for the crops.

One of the goals of the day was to help the children understand how farmers are careful stewards of the land.

dent insisted that pancake mix just comes out of a box, said Bonson, who explained about the wheat ingredients needed for the mix.

"We're a rural community and you would think kids would know. I want to show the connection of where food comes from, from farm to table, not just the grocery store," said Bonson.

During the day children also stopped at a station about 4-H to learn about the rocketry, cake decorating, etymology, and food clubs offered. "You don't have to live on a farm to be in 4-H," stressed Linda Bryson, a leader of the Shippensburg community club.

Forum For Communication

Anna Swailes, co-chair of the promotion and education committee of Franklin County Farm Bureau, sees the event as having double goals for both schoolchildren and the general public. "Saturday is a more free environment, it's more relaxed. Guests can still have ice cream and milk and milk a cow or have a wagon ride.

"This gives them a chance to experience the farm and where food comes from, that farmers are stewards of the environment and need the clean air and clear water. Students don't have access to a working farm to go touch a calf, milk a cow, to see the real story of agriculture."

The day, said Swailes, also shows the students the busy work schedule of the farm lifestyle.

According to Swailes people in agriculture-related occupations account for only two percent of the total population. Swailes pointed out that this fact means that the other 98 percent are in control of legislation, which should motivate producers to educate their non-farm neighbors.

"Two years ago for every farm in Franklin County there were 22 non-farm households," said Swailes, noting that the number of farm households has possibly decreased since two years ago.

"That means every farming household has to reach 22 non-farm households," said Swailes. "Every farmer must communicate. So we have a job to do."

"We can no longer stay on the farm and do what we have always been doing and not communicate with our non-farm neighbors. This is a challenge and we must meet it."

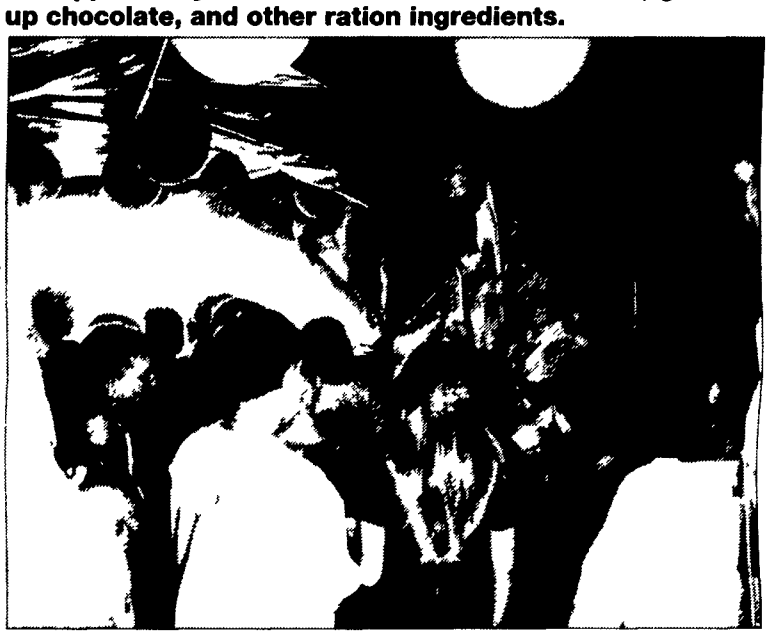
Kayla Wood and Olivia Owens, both of Chambersburg, enjoy an icy serving of the dairy food group during the Fall Farm Fun Fest.

"I didn't know cows ate chocolate," said Wood, who enjoyed seeing and smelling the ration ingredients.

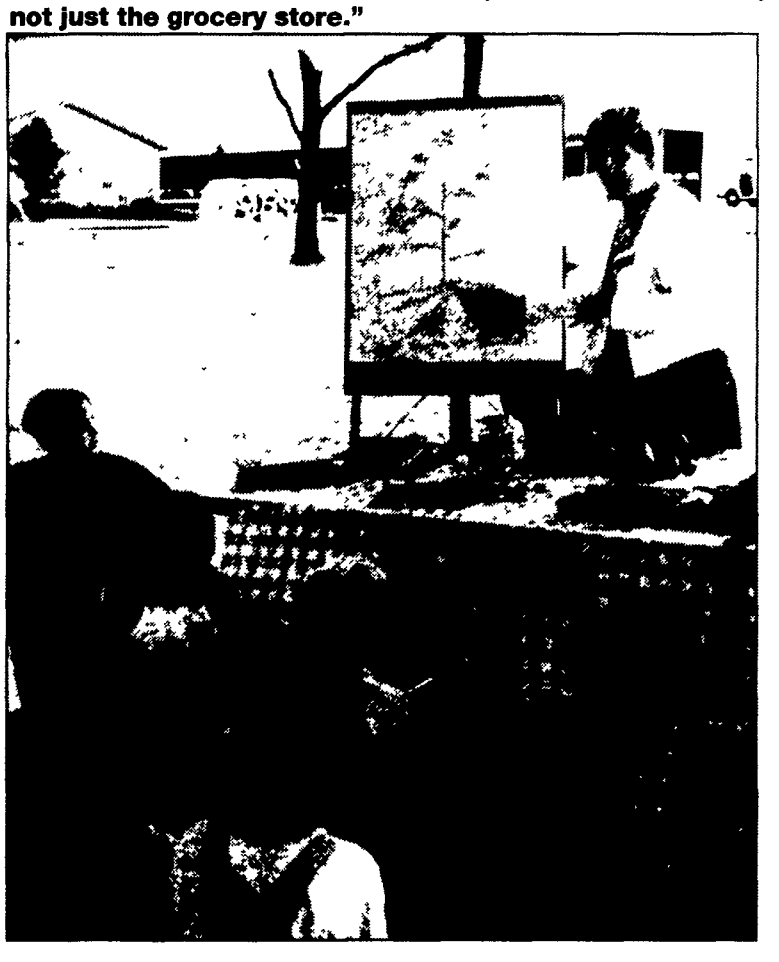
So, this is what a cow's stomach looks like . . . Students learned the names of a cow's stomachs, plus had the opportunity to see and smell the cottonseed, ground-up chocolate, and other ration ingredients.



Students got inside information as they toured through this station and learned about ration ingredients and the names of the cow's four stomachs.

Extension agent Ann Bonson demonstrates that potatoes are actually a root, one of the important ideas Bonson attempts to teach students raised in a grocery-store world.

"Most kids do not even know chips are made of potatoes," said Bonson. "I want them to understand the connection of where food comes from, from farm to table, not just the grocery store."



Hands-on experience: Chambersburg fourth graders learn "firsthand" about calf behavior.

Tomatoes For Every Taste

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

Lancaster (Lancaster Co.) — With more than 2,000 tomato varieties, choosing a tomato can be downright confusing. Some types are better for eating, some for canning, and some for cooking.

To help sort out the tomato dilemma, Lancaster Extension held a Totally Tomato Workshop.

Tim Elkner, Lancaster County horticulture agent, displayed the 44 varieties grew in test gardens, and Nancy Wiker, gave the latest update on canning and cooking tomatoes. In addition, she prepared several tasty recipes using tomatoes for workshop participants to sample.

Tomatoes, according to Elkner, have different purposes. Many of the older varieties can seldom be found. This isn't because they lacked flavor but because they were thin skinned and don't ship well.

A table display of tomatoes showed that tomatoes come in all sizes, shapes, and colors. Clear lemon colors, orange and pink shades to deep reds, grape-shaped, round shapes, oval types, from berry size to softball size.

While big juicy tomatoes are great for slicing and eating raw, they aren't the type best suited for canning and cooking. Too much juice. Roma types work better for canning.

"Many varieties have interesting stories behind their names," Elkner said. He introduced one variety called the "mortgage lifter." So named because the nicely-round, pink-toned tomato paid off the farm for one farmer who substitute that variety in place of growing tobacco.

A common problem with tomatoes are dropping off the vine before they are mature. If tomatoes drop off the vine before they are mature, Elkner said, it is probably deficient in calcium. Solve that by keeping the plants evenly watered to prevent cells from breaking down and fungus from entering the plant.

Early tomatoes tend to be small in size. Elkner said, "Some don't taste that good, but they taste better than the store-bought varieties if you're hungry for a real tomato after a long winter."

Yellow tomatoes are milder and don't have a strong tomato flavor. The deeper gold-colored, the higher it is in carotene," Elkner said.

Wiker cautioned that yellow tomatoes do not contain as much acid as the red varieties and therefore must be preserved differently.

To ensure safe acidity in whole, crushed, or juiced tomatoes, add two tablespoons bottled lemon juice or ½ teaspoon citric acid per quart of tomatoes. For pints, use 1 tablespoon bottled lemon juice or ¼ teaspoon citric acid. Sugar to taste may be added to offset acid taste.

Citric acid is available at drug stores.

Although vinegar does provide acid, it is not recommended in canning tomatoes because it produces a sour taste.

Although freezing tomatoes is acceptable, it is not recommended because they become limp after thawing. If you do freeze tomatoes, skins should be removed before freezing because they become tough.

When canning, be sure to use canning jars such as Ball or Kerr. A European catalog offers unique-shaped jars but these are not approved by the USDA because of problems with breakage and loose seals.

Some recipes for tomatoes follow, but check with your county extension office for more recipes and for in-depth instructions on preserving tomatoes and turning them into juice, salsa, spaghetti sauce, ketchup, and other dishes.

Nancy Wiker demonstrates the correct method of preserving tomato dishes. Because there are so many different varieties, the canning process has been changed recently to ensure food safety.

Spaghetti Sauce Without Meat

30 pounds tomatoes
1 cup onions, chopped
5 cloves garlic, minced
1 cup celery or green pepper, chopped
1 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced (optional)
4-½ teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons oregano
4 tablespoons parsley, minced
2 teaspoons black pepper
¼ cup brown sugar
¼ cup vegetable oil
Yield — About nine pints

Do not increase the proportion of onions, peppers, or mushrooms. Wash tomatoes and dip in boiling water for 30 to 60 seconds or until skins split. Dip in cold water and slip off skins. Remove cores and quarter tomatoes. Boil 20 minutes, uncovered, in large saucepan. Squeeze out juice with a food mill or sieve. Saute onions, garlic, celery or peppers, and mushrooms (if desired) in vegetable oil until tender. Combine sauteed vegetables and tomatoes and add remainder of spices, salt, and sugar. Bring to boil. Simmer, uncovered, until thick enough for serving. At this time the initial volume will have been reduced by nearly one-half. Stir frequently to avoid burning. Fill jars, leaving 1-inch headspace. Adjust lids and process jars as described in pressure canner 25 minutes.

Procedure for making sauce with meat. Saute 2-½ pounds of ground beef or sausage until brown. Using the recipe for making sauce without meat, add the quantities specified for garlic, onion, celery or green pepper, and mushrooms. Cook until vegetables are tender. Combine sauteed meat and vegetables with the tomato juice. Process in pressure canner 70 minutes.

Hot Barbecue Sauce

2-½ to 3 pounds chili peppers
30 pounds tomatoes
3 cups onions, chopped
1 tablespoon salt
1 tablespoon oregano
½ cup vinegar (five percent)
Yield — About nine pints

Caution: Wear rubber gloves while handling chilies or wash hands thoroughly with soap and water before touching your face. Wash and dry chilies. Slit the sides of peppers and peel them using one of the following methods:

Oven or broiler method: Place chilies in oven (400°F) or broiler six to eight minutes until skins blister.

Range-top method: Cover hot burner, either gas or electric, with heavy wire mesh. Place chilies on burner for several minutes until skins blister.

Allow peppers to cool. Place in a pan and cover with a damp cloth. This will make peeling the peppers easier. After several minutes, peel each pepper. Cool and slip off skins. Discard seeds and chop peppers. If desired, leave skins on and grind or coarsely chop peppers. Wash tomatoes and dip in boiling water for 30 to 60 seconds or until skins split. Dip in cold water, slip off skins, and remove cores. Coarsely chop tomatoes and combine chopped peppers and remaining ingredients in a large kettle. Bring to a boil. Simmer, uncovered, two to three hours or until the initial volume is reduced by one-third to one-half. Stir frequently to avoid burning. Fill jars, leaving 1-inch headspace. Adjust lids and process in pressure canner 25 minutes.

Tomato Ketchup

24 pounds ripe tomatoes
3 cups onions, chopped
¾ teaspoon ground red pepper (cayenne)
3 cups cider vinegar (five percent)
4 teaspoons whole cloves
3 sticks cinnamon, crushed
1-½ teaspoon whole allspice
3 tablespoons celery seeds
1-½ cups sugar
¼ cup salt
Yield — six to seven pints

Wash tomatoes. Dip in boiling water for 30 to 60 seconds or until skins split. Dip in cold water. Slip off skins and remove cores. Quarter tomatoes into four-gallon stock pot or a large kettle. Add onions and red peppers. Bring to a boil and simmer uncovered for 20 minutes. Combine spices in a spice bag and add vinegar in a two-quart saucepan. Bring to boil. Cover, turn off heat and hold tomato mixture 20 minutes. Then, remove spice bag and combine vinegar and tomato mixture. Boil about 30 minutes. Put boiled mixture through a food mill or sieve. Return to pot. Add sugar and salt, boil gently, and stir frequently until volume is reduced by one-half or until mixture rounds up on spoon without separation. Fill pint jars, leaving ⅛-inch headspace. Adjust lids and process in boiling water canner 15 minutes.

Blender Ketchup

24 pounds ripe tomatoes
2 pounds onions
1 pound sweet red peppers
1 pound sweet green peppers
9 cups vinegar (five percent)
9 cups sugar
¼ cup canning or pickling salt
3 tablespoons dry mustard
1-½ tablespoons ground red pepper
1-½ teaspoons whole allspice
1-½ tablespoons whole cloves
3 three-inch sticks of cinnamon
Yield — nine pints

Wash tomatoes and dip in boiling water for 30 to 60 seconds or until skins split. Then dip in cold water, slip off skins, core, and quarter. Remove seeds from peppers and slice into strips. Peel and quarter onions. Blend tomatoes, peppers, and onions at high speed for five seconds in electric blender. Pour into a three- to four-gallon stock pot or large kettle and heat. Boil gently 60 minutes, stirring frequently. Add vinegar, sugar, salt, and a spice bag containing dry mustard, red pepper, and other spices. Continue boiling and stirring until volume is reduced on-half and ketchup rounds up on a spoon with no separation of liquid and solids. Remove spice bag and fill jars, leaving ⅛-inch headspace. Adjust lids and process jars in boiling water canner 15 minutes.

Tim Elkner holds up a tomato named the "mortgage lifter," named for its popularity in enabling a farmer to pay off his mortgage from successful sales of the pink-shaded tomato.

Manheim FFA Member Wins Trip To Nashville

Troy Wenger, Manheim FFA member, was one of four Lancaster County FFA members to be selected to attend the Pennsylvania Council of Agriculture Cooperatives Summer Institute (PCC).

Troy spent four days at Shippensburg University learning how to run a business in the form of a cooperative. Emphasis was placed on leadership development and skills necessary to operate a business.

Activities during the week included forming a cooperative and selling its products to other students, leading general sessions, Variety Show, Viewpoint-public speaking about agriculture topics, daily newspaper, News Team, chorus, and a cooperative poster contest. Adult resource leaders for the week included cooperative employees from across Pennsylvania, agriculture teachers, and Penn State Cooperative Education staff.

Troy's involvement in many of the PCC activities and his family's dairy farm commitment to marketing their milk through Land O Lakes Cooperative earned him a trip to the National Institute of Cooperative Education (NICE) in Nashville, Tenn. Troy was one of only 13 students selected to attend NICE. Students from across the U.S. meet to learn about the business of cooperatives. Tours of agriculture sites in the Nashville area were conducted.

Manheim FFA Triumphs In State Competition

Fifteen Manheim FFA members competed in eight different Career Development Events (CDE) June 13-15 at Pennsylvania FFA Activities Week in State College.

They were among 1,500 top agriculture students from across Pennsylvania to compete at this annual event. The Pennsylvania FFA Foundation provides the funding for the award winners.

Lori Hockenberry was recognized as the state winner with the Horse Proficiency Award. Lori was then named a gold medal winner on the national level.

Casey Livengood and Ryan Eberly comprised the first place small gas engines team. Each team member received $100. In addition, Casey received a plaque for being the first place individual in the CDE.

Ryan Garber was the second place individual in the tractor driving CDE.

Dustin Geib, Troy Wenger, Dustin Musser, and Jordan Wolgemuth were the third place ag mechanics team in a close placing competition.

The Manheim FFA chapter placed third in the chapter scrapbook competition. Michelle Wetzel, Manheim FFA alumni, oversaw the assembly of this year's scrapbook.

QUESTION — Robin Baummer needs someone to repair a braided rug with a 10x10-inch section missing. She prefers someone from the York or Adams County area.

QUESTION G. Sweitzer wants to know what chemicals to use for treating wood damaged/infested by Eastern Subterranean Termites. Also, what chemicals are used outside the house and where can they be purchased?

ANSWER — Dennis Dempsey, Royersford, wants to know where to find a manual for an early 1950s Farmall H tractor or a copy of the same. A reader writes that they have an original owner's manual in good condition for a Farmall H and HV to sell for $20. Call (717) 463-3953.

Thanks to Robert Long, Clearfield, who has answered three questions recently and concerning this question, writes that because production of the Farmall H ended in 1952, few owners' manuals still exist. However, TEMCO, a leading distributor of after market farm equipment parts and headquartered at 2632 Channel St., Memphis, TN 38133, has numerous dealers throughout Pennsylvania. The company has an after market shop manual for the now outdated Farmall H. The manual is listed in the TEMCO catalog for $24.95. The telephone number for the company is (901) 946-4440.

ANSWER — A reader wants to make kitty and doggie draft guards to keep air from creeping beneath the doors and asked what is put inside to give the form weight? Thanks to a reader who writes that he uses medium chicken grit, which is like a rice-sized crushed stone. Any small grains such as wheat and oats work fairly well, but there could be a problem with insects or mice getting into them. Sand should work.

ANSWER — A Christiana reader wanted to know where to purchase home canned black raspberry juice. A reader writes that it is generally available from Benjamin S. Allgyer, 6222 Plank Rd., Narvon, PA 17555. They are sold out this year but are taking orders for next year. Also, they still have blackberry juice.

ANSWER — Lee Laverty, Dover, N.J., wrote that when her children were small, she make a dough out flour, salt, and some other ingredients, which were cut into shapes and painted for Christmas tree decorations. She lost the recipe and asked if someone would share it. Thanks to Mary Breinir, Tamaqua, for sending this recipe.

Salt Ornaments

2cups salt
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon powdered alum (if desired) alum is used for drying and hardening the mixture
1⅔ cups water

Combine all ingredients in saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is very thick (3 to 5 minutes). Cool slightly. Spread over can, box or item to be decorated. Place in 200 degree oven for 1-2 hours to dry firm to touch. Press decorations into the mixture before drying.

To roll with a rolling pin, add 2 cups flour to mixture. Roll ¼-inch thickness. Cut with cookie cutters. Dry in oven, turning to dry on second side after first hour. Press decorations into mixture before drying.

Lack Of Shipping Competition Pinches Farmers

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The lack of true competition in the agriculture shipping business concerns farmers who have seen their commodity transportation choices dwindle, become less reliable and more costly, Farm Bureau recently told a Senate Transportation subcommittee.

"Farmers have every reason to be concerned about competitive transportation," North Dakota Farm Bureau President Eric Aasmundstad told the panel.

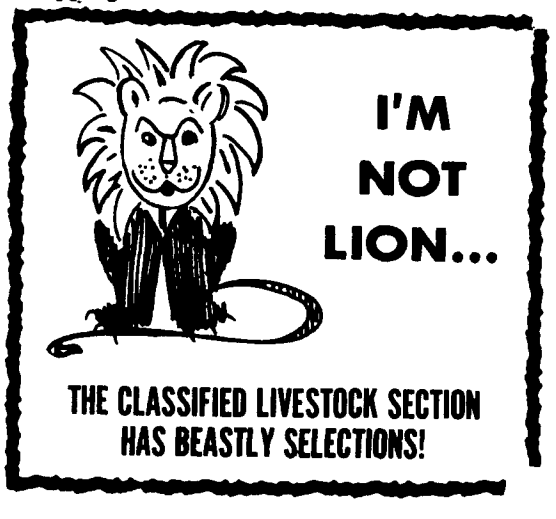
The North Dakota grain producer and custom combine operator said merger-driven consolidation in the railroad industry, increasing regulatory and environmental pressures on waterway transportation and outdated laws governing ocean shipping have combined to ratchet up shipping costs and inconvenience farmers and local grain handlers.

"The real-world experience of American farmers demonstrates that competition would be helpful," Aasmundstad said. "Many agricultural areas were once served by three or four railroads that could move grains and other bulk commodities. Today, only two railroads carry the vast bulk of the traffic that moves west of the Mississippi River, and in many areas they do not compete with each other."

The farm leader told senators that key reforms are needed to ensure meaningful commodity shipping competition. Aasmundstad said Farm Bureau supports provisions of the Rail Competition and Service Improvement Act, which would help alleviate some of the effects of decreased shipping competition. The proposal would require railroads to offer access to competing companies in terminal areas and allow shippers to seek rates from a competitor in areas where only one railroad provides service.

He cited specific examples where decreased railroad competition has bumped up shipping prices for producers sending grain to the Pacific Northwest for export. Aasmundstad noted that grain producers in Nebraska — where a limited amount of rail competition exists — paid 14 cents per bushel less than their counterparts in Montana to ship grain to Portland, despite the 200 miles in additional distance the Nebraska grain had to travel. For North Dakota producers whose only railroad choice is the merged Burlington Northern-/Santa Fe (BNSF) railroad, shipping hard red spring wheat to Seattle costs about $1.20 per bushel for grain that brings a market price of around $2.27 per bushel, he said.

"If you compare this per-bushel shipping price to the market being offered in of my state, you can see that farmers in my state are working several months a year to pay BNSF to haul their grain to market," Aasmundstad said. "Every penny in shipping cost that results from a lack of meaningful competition is borne by farmers in the form of lower grain prices at the elevators where they sell their grain. We believe meaningful competition among rail service providers would help alleviate this problem."



New Doors Open For U.S. Certified Angus Beef In Canada

WOOSTER, Ohio — Certified Angus Beef (CAB) LLC, a subsidiary of the American Angus Association, recently licensed plants for both beef harvest and fabrication to produce Certified Angus Beef™ (CAB) product in Canada, according to company president Jim Riemann. He cited growing demand and licensee interest on both sides of the border.

Canadian demand has long been a key to the success of CAB's international division, and licensees in Canada last year sold 15 million pounds of Certified Angus Beef™ product, ranking second only to Japan in overall sales.

Moreover, many Canadian foodservice and retail licensees say they could double sales if this world-leading beef brand were processed in Canada. It's already produced there but traditionally Canadian Angus-type carcasses were shipped to U.S. locations for U.S. Department of Agriculture grading and certification as CAB product.

Then, some of those millions of pounds of branded CAB product have been exported and trucked back to Canada along with mostly U.S.-produced product. Not only has this been inefficient for packers, it has also increased the number of trucks bringing Canadian beef into the U.S. — often a point of contention with Northern U.S. producers.

Some processing firms in Canada had been identifying Angus and Angus-type cattle for CAB for some time, Riemann explains. These and additional firms representing more than 65 percent of Canadian slaughter capacity have expressed a strong interest in being able to fabricate CAB products in their Canadian plants.

The American Angus Association and CAB boards of producer-directors last fall voted for exploring these greater efficiencies in Canadian licensing. The demand for Certified Angus Beef™ product has outstripped available supplies for most of CAB's 22-year history.

Last year, the CAB supply development effort shifted into high gear, launching a feedlot licensing program that now has 50 feedlots in 14 states, with 600,000-head current capacity. Meanwhile, producer premiums for achieving CAB acceptance continue to rise, and the genetic tools to get there are becoming sharper and sharper.

The move to expand in Canada should help ensure a continued robust growth in demand for the jump-started supply, and that is a key to garnering producer premiums as a reward for hitting the CAB target. This new opportunity is expected to increase demand on both sides of the border for Angus cattle with the genetics to hit that target.

Cattle Availability

The total Canadian beef herd is about 10 percent of the U.S. beef herd, and about 15 percent of the Canadian herd is Angus or Angus-type. Some 400,000 of Canada's 2.7 million annual fed beef slaughter could meet the basic live specifications for Certified Angus Beef™ product. But since there is no CAB program in Canada, many of those cattle had been entering the U.S.

If 15 percent of carcasses from this black-hided subset of cattle meet specifications for CAB, about 7.3 million pounds per year of CAB products would be produced by the Alberta plants. Canadian retail and foodservice licensees currently market a little over 15 million pounds of CAB products yearly. By comparison, the overall CAB program markets about 570 million pounds of products yearly.

The single largest CAB retail licensee north of the border, Overwaitea Stores (81 locations and growing across western Canada) plans to more than double sales if the CAB product can be of Canadian origin.

With the better service afforded by locally licensed plants, other Canadian retail and foodservice licensees expressed similar interest. Canadian demand for locally-produced CAB product is expected to cover the increased supply. These licensees tend to prefer marketing Canadian-produced beef without the import documentation and currency value differences. Yet they understand that the Canadian-produced supply would not be adequate to meet their needs and they would continue buying U.S.-produced CAB products as demand grows.

"There is a perceived difference in the eyes of some of our Canadian customers that U.S. beef is somehow different and poorer than Canadian beef," says Danny Ransom, Intercity Packers, Vancouver, British Columbia. "There are also customers who won't buy Certified Angus Beef™ because it is not Canadian.

"Although we know that North American beef production is borderless, this change will give our customers the option of buying a great product — Certified Angus Beef™ — from their preferred country of origin," Ransom explains. "This change will also help in the overall availability of Certified Angus Beef™, which is very positive."

The amount of U.S-produced product shipped to Canada would be affected very little, but has much potential for growth, says Riemann. In the near term, there are several positive aspects that should reduce both the import of Angus-type live cattle and curtail the practice of shipping Angus-type carcasses into the U.S. for grading and certification for CAB.

Maintaining Integrity

CAB is coordinating with the Canadian Beef Grading Agency (CBGA) the development of procedures to work with packers for producing and protecting the integrity of branded products from steer and heifer carcasses.

The CBGA marbling score standards are already identical to those used in the United States, and U.S. Yield Grades can be calibrated to a yield percentage. Standards for the remaining six CAB carcass specifications — "A" maturity, moderate or better muscling, medium to fine marbling texture, neck hump no greater than two-inches, and no dark cutters or blood splashes — can be easily maintained, Riemann says.

Riemann met last fall with CBGA officials to resolve all remaining issues that heretofore prevented licensing Canadian beef processing and fabrication plants. "Reporting systems, have now been written to satisfy the Canadian Food Inspection Agency as well as CBGA, and labeling and product integrity details have been ironed out," he says.

The CAB feeder-packer relations division licenses North American feedlots to improve sourcing of not just black-hided, but true Angus-type cattle for CAB.

The SIGNATURE 6000 may be the only rock picker you'll ever need. This is the most rugged rock picker on the market Some of the SIGNATURE 6000 features include:

Solid Shaft Grill Tines with Replaceable Grill Tips - This modern grill is easier to maintain, has longer life giving you less down time. The unique grill provides five feet of clean sifting and virtually jamless performance.

Grated Hopper Bottom - We use spring steel straps in the hopper, engineered to bounce back in shape.

Hydraulic Drive - The most popular drive on rock pickers is hydraulic which is standard on the 6000. We have incorporated a relief valve to take away the shock when disengaging the drive

Reel Assembly - The three paddle reel has a large diameter, hard surfaced teeth and heavy duty paddles

Flotation Tires - The 16.5L x 16.1 flotation tires are standard equipment and are a must to reduce soil compaction.

Swing Pole - Easy to maneuver in both working or transport position.

Degelman

In the Degelman tradition of quality rock removal equipment, here is the RR1500 rock rake, another example of Degelman's continuing commitment to excellence.

The RR1500 rock rake includes a unique auto-fold system which provides safe, easy transport no wider than most tractors (8 feet in transport position) with full use of the 14 foot width in the working position And with hydraulic angling, it can take full advantage of the 10 to 30 degree angling range

Degelman Rock Rakes are excellent machines for grooming fairways and conditioning soil for the construction of golf courses It leaves a beautiful final finish preparing the course for seeding They are also used for reclaiming gravel on gravel roads. And the heavy duty construction and quality workmanship means that it is built to last

Catastrophic Crop Insurance A Must For Bethlehem Grower

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

BETHLEHEM (Northampton Co.) — Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association (PMCGA) Vice President Guy Wagner knows how important catastrophic insurance, or CAT, can be for producers

Because of last year's devastating drought, Wagner recalls that the corn on 40 acres was so worthless he simply disced it in.

CAT insurance for Wagner amounted to $60 per crop

"I always took it," he said during an interview late in December at his farm

Farmers experienced about a 70 percent crop loss in the county. "How could you not, especially the past year, when producers got less than half a crop?"

Ever since Wagner purchased the farm business from his father, Walter, in 1990, he has bought crop insurance for his 880 acres of corn and 400 acres of soybeans, for a total of $120

As for CAT insurance, "most don't take it," said Guy. "They never thought the year could have been like this either You just never know"

CAT insurance pays off only a fraction of the crop

EMPORIUM (Cameron Co.)–She says farming is expensive, and would he like to try bowling instead?

The humor in LuAnn Reed's voice soon turns to pride when she talks about her husband, Jeff, farming part time on his family farm, and winning the 1999 Pennsylvania 5-Acre Corn Club Award in the hand-harvest class with 204 3 bushels per acre

Jeff and LuAnn Reed both work full time off the farm In their spare time, they farm about 45 acres of cropland on his home farm plus an additional 60 acres on his father, Earl's, farm

What pleases this Cameron County couple the most

WHERE CAN YOU CUT CORNERS ON CORN PRODUCTION?

After last year's dreadful year, many corn growers are asking where and how they can reduce input costs in corn production

The key is to focus on those inputs that give us the most consistent responses to our investment Let's review how each of several common corn inputs have produced a return on investment in our trials here at Penn State

One input you might think about is seed. In our trials there is often a large variation in performance–about 30 to 40 bushels per acre So this input is not one to cut corners on Some, but not all, premium-priced hybrids are top yielders Check out independent data to get some idea how new hybrids perform

Our trials have shown relatively low (3-4 bushel per acre) yield responses to the Bt gene itself under normal planting conditions, as have

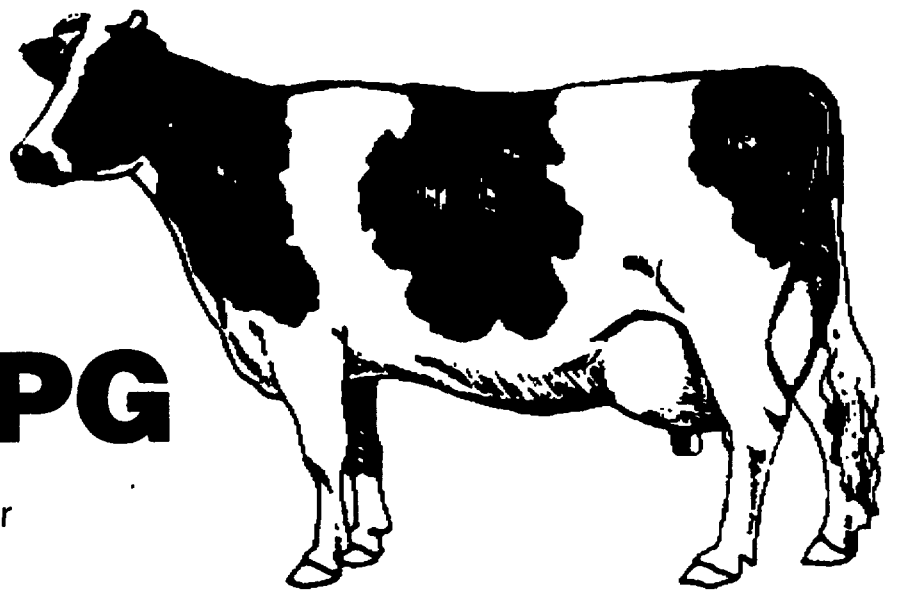
Announcing



RESPONSE™ PG

An exciting new dairy product with great potential for dairy producers.

Response™ PG will improve rumen function and provide a source of energy precursor during the critical transition period.

Consolidated Nutrition's Reponse™ PG is 55% propylene glycol. It also contains a yeast culture in an easy to use, palatable dry form, clearly makes Response™ PG a break through dairy product.

The target feeding rate is about 9 oz. of Response™PG per day. This feeding rate will cost less than 80¢ per head per day. In addition to reducing metabolic problems, Response™ PG can have a positive impact on peak milk enhancement, feed (energy) intake and reproduction performance due to improved energy balance and rumen function.

What Is A Chute Worth?

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Many small beef producers do not have adequate cattle handling facilities. These same producers often think that "the benefits (proper cattle management) don't justify the costs (purchasing the equipment)." The following chart is based upon figures investigated at the University of Georgia. These figures represent the lost return caused by not investing in adequate cattle-handling facilities which often lets important health and management practices go undone in a typical 25-head cowherd.

Failure to:

- Castrate: ($5.00/cwt discounted at sale) $225.00
- Dehorn: ($4.50/cwt discounted at sale) $127.50
- Implant: (loss of 20lbs /calf per year) $240.00
- Cull open cows: ($175/open cow per year carry-over) $875.00

This results in a potential total loss per year of $1467.50 based upon UGA research. In addition, this fails to address the potential losses of not participating in preconditioning programs such as Buckeye's Best or the failure to properly identifying poor-doers by tracking individual animal performance through the use of scales and electronic identification.

While these numbers were generated in the southeastern US, thus they may not accurately reflect Ohio's markets, the basic principles still apply. As the US beef marketing system continues to change, additional emphasis (and therefore increased dollar value) is going to be placed on high-quality cattle that have been properly cared for using the highest standards of beef quality assurance.
